Let's dig—"Attempt the end, and never stand to doubt;
Nothing's so hard but search will find it out."

Uncle Sam takes out half a dozen accident policies and goes into the world court.

Hazel Nutt says it's a pity the United States can't join the world court without Gloria Swanson buttling in and getting all the publicity out of it.

Col. Bill Mitchell finally talks himself out of a good job.

Italy arranges at London to string out a half portion of spaghetti over a period of 62 years.

In our celebrated murder mystery the police do not unravel the wrong ball of cord.

Senator Capper's committee is gradually making it pretty plain that whoever finally wins the coal strike it won't be the consumers.

With the tax bill finally on the main line and all steamed up let us hope that Senator Norris won't be able to throw the switch.

The War Department seems inclined to give Col. Mitchell, as Rip Van Winkle said—a cold potato and let him go.

Iowa is making a list of those declared to be unfit to marry and raise a family under a new State law, and it is said there will be 100,000 of them. Who would have imagined there were so many people out there who refuse to believe in the economic soundness of the new
"Iowa idea?"

Why so much excitement over the feat of those Dutch chemists in turning lead into mercury, when everybody in America knows that the war turned a nickel into a copper?

"We are 110,000,000 people devoted to peace," says Senator Borah, "having practiced it for 150 years." Except when we were engaged in the Revolutionary war,
the War of 1812, the Seminole war,
the Mexican war, the Civil war,
the Indian war, the Spanish war,
the Philippine war, Mr. Wilson's second war with Mexico, and the World war, Mr. Borah's statement is substantially correct.

Another plan proposed by John L. Lewis for ending the strike is turned down. It may be hard for the miners in the anthracite field but it's pretty soft for the operators in the bituminous mines.

Fortunately for the reputation of Santa Claus Rupert Hughes says there isn't any, otherwise we'd probably be told he was a boot-legger and a jazz hound.

Chauncey M. Depew thinks the nonpartisan ticket of 1926 may be Coolidge and Gov. Smith. Age can not wither him, nor custom stale the infinite variety of his jokes.

Well, it must be admitted that a "Cal and Al" ticket would poll the solid headline-writers vote.

The venerable statesman Kato is dead—and if somebody is reading this item to you you may jump to the conclusion that a belated bit of news from ancient Rome has just got into the papers.

Sensor Cool Blazes' dark picture of the American judge on the world court sitting on the bench between the judges from Liberia and Haiti appears to have been cleverly calculated to make Senator Tom Heflin decide to decline the appointment.

Britain collects her Italian debt on the theory that a half bowl is better than no macaroni.

Ohio gentleman files suit for divorce two weeks after he had stuffed his wife's lifeless body down a well. There's no limit to the trouble some of these thorough people will go to.

"Thou God of this great vast, rebuke these surges,
Which wash both heaven and hell;
and thou that hast
Upon the winds command, bind them in brass."

As Pericles exclaimed in the midst of the storm, "the seaman's whistle is as a whisper in the ears of death." Twelve are rescued from the sinking freighter Antioch, and the Laristan goes to pieces with a loss of 25 men.

A railroad wreck in the yards of the Washington terminal is a bit of unusual news, reminiscent of the old days when such disasters were of common occurrence in Our Town, and the old "Y" was very prominent in headline circles.

AMERICA'S ENTRY INTO COURT VOTED BY SENATE, 76-17

14 More Than Necessary
Two-Thirds Are Cast for Adherence.

RESOLUTION ADOPTED WITH RESERVATIONS

Swanson Qualifications Only
Are Accepted; Other Nations Must Accept Them.

MRS. WOODROW WILSON IS INTERESTED WITNESS

Moses' Proposal to Outlaw War Rejected After Sharp
Tilts on Floor.

By ALBERT W. FOX.

The Senate ratified the Swanson resolution of adherence to the world court at 6:52 o'clock last evening by a vote of 76 to 17. This was 14 more than the necessary two-thirds.

The roll call, which came after all reservations, except the Swanson group, had been decisively voted down, was as follows:

For ratification:
Republicans—Bingham, Butler, Cameron, Capper, Couzens, Cummins, Curtis, Dale, Deneen, Edge, Ernst, Fess, Gillett, Goff, Gooding,
Hale, Howell, Jones of Washington, Keyes, Lenroot, McKinley, McLean,
McMaster, McNary, Means, Metcalf, Norbeck, Norris, Oddie, Pepper,
Phipps, Reed of Pennsylvania, Sackett, Shortridge, Smoot, Stanfield, Wadsworth, Warren, Weller, Willis—40.

Democrats—Ashurst, Bayard, Bratton, Broussard, Bruce, Caraway, Copeland, Edwards, Ferris, Fletcher, George, Gerry, Glass, Harris, Harrison, Heflin, Jones of New Mexico, Kendrick, King, McKellar, Mayfield, Neely, Overman, Pittman, Randell, Robinson, of Arkansas, Sheppard, Simmons, Smith, Stephens, Swanson, Trammell, Tyson, Underwood, Walsh, Wheeler—36.
Total—76.

Those Opposing Adherence.

Against ratification:
Republicans—Borah, Brookhart, Fernald, Frazier, Harrell, Johnson, La Follette, Moses, Nye, Pine, Robinson (Indiana), Schall, Watson, Williams—14.

Democrats—Blease, Reed (Missouri)—2.

Farm-Labor—Shipstead—1.

Total—17.

Senator Dill was paired against the resolution, thus bringing the total strength of the opposition to 18. The Swanson reservations, making concessions all along the line to the court opponents, accounted for the decisive character of the ratification vote.

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, widow of the war President, sat in the gallery intensely interested as the vote was taken.

The ratification now places the United States in a position of readiness to sign the protocol and become a member of the court, as

Horse Under Prince Of Wales Drops Dead

London, Jan. 27 (By A. P.).—
The prince of Wales' horse dropped dead under him today while the prince was hunting at Melton-Mowbray with the Belvoir hounds. The prince was not injured.

The prince had just cleared a fence, and on landing his mount fell dead. The prince fell on his side and suffered a slight bruise, but otherwise unhurt. He mounted another horse and resumed the hunt.

Court Permits Bride To Rejoin Her Class

Cape Girardeau, Mo., Jan. 27 (By A. P.).—A temporary injunction restraining the Charleston (Mo.) board of education from enforcing its rule to bar married women from school was issued today by Circuit Judge Kelly.

Mrs. Herman Mattingly, bride of a month, against whom the rule was invoked, returned to her studies at a high school senior, pending outcome of further litigation. The court held the rule reasonable, but granted the injunction on the ground that the rule had not been made public, so the young woman did not know of its existence.

FREIGHTER WITH 25 MEN SINKS AT SEA. RESCUE SHIP RADIOS

Bremen Finds Wreckage Where Laristan Was;
Had Taken 6 Off.

New York, Jan. 27 (By A. P.).—
Death prowled the waves tonight and reaped a human harvest, but twelve men were snatched from his grasp by fellow seamen who had repeatedly risked their lives for humanity's sake.

In the worst storm which has raged the Atlantic in years, the British freighter Laristan broke up after a two-day battle against the elements and went down with a crew of 25 men. The liner Bremen, which answered the Laristan's SOS call, had saved six of her crew yesterday and had stood by in the hope of being able to offer assistance, gave up hope when, after losing sight of the freighter, it came upon widely strewn wreckage, which it assumed was all that was

12 Saved From Antioch.

Heroic efforts of the crew of the President Roosevelt, however, were successful today in saving the lives of twelve men from the sinking steamer Antioch, by which it had stood since Sunday. Five times since it came upon the disabled ship boats had been sent cross the

REQUEST TO REINTER DEWEY IS REPORTED

Widow Said to Have Asked Removal From Cathedral to Arlington.

Special to The Washington Post.
New York, Jan. 27.—A Washington dispatch to the New York American late tonight says:

"Mrs. George Dewey has requested that the body of her husband,
Admiral Dewey, hero of Manila Bay, be returned from the crypt of Bethlehem chapel, Washington cathedral, to its former resting place in the national cemetery at Arlington, it was learned tonight.

The widow is anxious that the body of her husband rest in Arlington cemetery so she may be buried beside him. The only women now buried in the crypt are wives of bishops.

Bishop James E. Freeman was located in New York tonight. He said the matter of the removing of Admiral Dewey's body from the cathedral has not yet been brought to his attention.

U. S. FUEL ENGINEER HOLDS RETAIL PRICE OF COAL EXORBITANT

G. S. Pope Contrasts His Costs With Local Quotations.

DISTRICT MERCHANTS
SAY FIGURES HIGHER

Profiteering at Both Ends Is Apparent, Committee Members Declare.

Exorbitant prices are being charged by Washington coal dealers, George S. Pope, chief engineer of the government fuel yards, yesterday told the Senate District committee, investigating alleged profiteering here. At the same time Mr.
Pope presented figures to show that New River-Poconos coal, which is used mostly in Washington for domestic purposes, has almost trebled in price at the mines since the beginning of the anthracite strike.

Committee members, impressed by the progress made toward getting at the cause of the high prices, said there was apparent profiteering at both ends.

According to the highest price which Mr. Pope has paid for coal since August, a margin of approximately $3 a ton remains for the local dealer, not including degradation. Mr. Pope quoted the report of the fact finding commission which in 1922 placed the fair margin at Philadelphia at $2.20 a ton.

Calls Screening Unnecessary.

Concerning the percentage of degradation which the local dealers contend averages 25 per cent, the report said a "few cents" a ton should be allowed.

Local dealers contend they screen every ton of coal before it is delivered to the consumer. Mr. Pope said the government fuel yards did not find that necessary. His figures showed that he had fared much better as a buyer than John P. Agnew & Co. and J. Maury Dove Co., local dealers, for whom figures were submitted Tuesday to show that in some instances they had paid as high as $8 a ton at the mines.

Mr. Pope said he had never paid more than $6.16 for a gross ton.
A freight rate of approximately $3 a ton is added to the cost of the coal on the tracks here.

Gives Prices U. S. Pays.

All of Mr. Pope's figures were for gross tons in which quantities local dealers handle coal. In March he bought one car at $2.40, in August one car at $3.19, in October eight cars at $6.16, in November 25 cars at $6.16, in December 10 cars at $5.60, and this month six cars at $4.76.

Mr. Pope was pressed by Senator Glass, of Virginia, as to whether he thought the margin of $5 a ton for the local dealer based on the highest price he paid for coal and a sales price of $14 a ton was exorbitant.

On the face of the report of the fact finding commission, it was, he said.

He explained that the margin fixed in this report was to cover every expense accruing to the dealer from the time the coal arrives at its destination until it is delivered to the consumer, including drayage.

Fascists and Radicals In Battle in Berlin

(Special Cable Dispatch.)
Berlin, Jan. 27.—After parading a gallows and effigy of the former kaiser throughout the town, communists engaged in a battle at midnight tonight with the fascists at Charlottenburg. Twelve Hitlerites and 39 communists were wounded.
Two of the wounded men are near death.

Police say the fascists suddenly emerged from Hohenzollern hall, where they had been celebrating the former kaiser's birthday. Seeing the kaiser on the gallows in effigy, they fired into the communists, who charged with stones and clubs.

ITALY WILL PAY BRITAIN ONLY HALF OF HER DEBT

Agreement Signed in London; Terms Follow Lines of Balfour Note.

INTEREST IS NOT ASKED

London, Jan. 27 (By A. P.).—
Under the terms of the Italian debt funding agreement with Great Britain, signed today, Italy is to make 62 annual payments, beginning with
2,000,000 pounds sterling ($10-000,000), payable on February 15, next.

The instalments for the next two years will be 4,000,000 pounds sterling each; for the following four years 4,250,000 pounds sterling, and thenceforth 4,500,000 pounds sterling annually until the final year, when the account will be closed with a payment of 2,250-000 pounds sterling.

The 22,000,000 pounds sterling in gold which Italy deposited with the Bank of England in 1915, against the war loans, will be returned to Italy beginning with the fiscal year 1928-29, in eight instalments of 1,250,000 pounds sterling, and after these eight years, until September 15, 1937, in annual instalments of 191,000
pounds sterling.

Italy will pay semi-annually, on March 15 and September 15, Great Britain will pay no interest on the Italian gold.

Great Britain also guarantees, as outlined in the famous Balfour note, that, at any time the reparations from Germany bring the total to more than the payments by Great Britain to the United States, the British will proportionately refund the amount to Italy.

The settlement in effect only compels Italy to repay to Great Britain a little more than $250-000,000, or less than half of her war debt of $592,000,000.

The payments are not interest bearing, and they are to last only

GREENE FAINTS IN SENATE DURING COURT ROLL CALL

Senator, Accidentally Shot 2
Years Ago by Dry Agent, Recovers Quickly.

CAUSED BY INDIGESTION

Senator Frank L. Greene, of Vermont, who has been in poor health since he was accidentally shot two years ago by a prohibition agent, suffered a fainting spell on the Senate floor yesterday.

The senator collapsed as the Senate was voting on one of the reservations to the world court. He was taken to the lobby and Senator Copeland, of New York, who is a physician, was called from the Senate District committee coal hearing to attend him.

Senator Greene subsequently was taken to his home, and Senator Copeland said his collapse had been caused by an attack of indigestion.
He did not lose consciousness and was fully recovered in ten minutes, Senator Copeland said.

Senator Copeland said there was no recurrence of the paralysis which the shooting two years ago occasioned and of which the Vermont senator still bears slight traces.

Senator Greene visited his son in the Philippines last summer in an effort to recover his health, but his friends say the trip accomplished little. There were reports that his poor health would cause the senator's retirement, but since his appearance at the present session of Congress there have been no indications of it.

Poor Teeth in Cities Laid to Kitchenettes

Chicago, Jan. 27 (By A. P.).— Dr. Percy R. Howe, of Boston, declared today that the kitchenette apartment style of living is one of the causes of poor teeth in metropolitan America. Speaking before the Chicago Dental society, he emphasized a good diet and advised greater use of fruit and vegetables.

Engineer, Seriously Hurt, Saved From Death
by Fireman.

LOCOMOTIVE JUMPS TRACKS AT SWITCH

Two of 150 Passengers Cut Slightly as Four Coaches Are Derailed.

HIGH SPEED IS HELD
CAUSE OF ACCIDENT

Traffic at Terminal Hampered for Three Hours; Official Inquiry Today.

Four persons were injured; one of them so seriously he may die, in the wreck of a Pennsylvania train from Philadelphia in the yards of the Washington terminal last night.

The wreck occurred at the viaduct which crosses Florida avenue northeast at Third street. The locomotive was overturned and wrecked, two express cars were smashed and four Pullman and day coaches were derailed.

The engineer, John J. Mooney, 59 years old, of Wilmington, Del., was pinned beneath shifting coal from the engine tender and seriously burned. He was saved from death by his fireman, Harry E. Wilhelm, 30 years old, also of Wilmington, who braved the escaping steam and dug his chief out of the engine cab.

Wilhelm suffered a possible minor fracture of his left arm and slight burns on his back. The engineer, however, did not escape so lightly. The steam seared his entire left side.

Rushed to Sibley hospital in a passing automobile, late last night he was unable to give any account of just what had happened. His condition, Dr. J. W. Mankin, chief physician of the Pennsylvania railroad, who took immediate charge of the injured, is very serious. Dr.
William A. Jack, surgeon, and Dr.
W. S. Ritchie, of the hospital staff, said he had a chance to live.

Two passengers were injured, but so slightly hospital treatment was not necessary.

Injured Resumed Journey.

The injured passengers were treated by D. E. C. Hunter, relief surgeon of the railroad, Mrs.
Bennett, of Morristown, N. J., and Mr. Lindsay, of New York, were treated for slight bruises and continued on their way South.

"Excessive speed was the cause of the wreck," J. H. Tongue, manager of the Washington Terminal Co., declared in a statement last night after an investigation.

"What caused the engineer to travel at such a speed we do not know. His injuries were such last night as to prevent our talking to him."

The signal light over the track the train was traveling, Mr. Tongue said, called for a speed not in excess of 12 miles an hour. Signal-men and others, it was said, declared that the train was traveling from 40 to 60 miles an hour. An official investigation of the wreck will be begun this morning, under the direction of the Terminal Co.

Jumps Track at Switch.

The wreck occurred when the train, the speed of which was estimated at from 50 to 55 miles an hour down to 12 miles, jumped the track at a switch.

There was a sudden jar from quickly applied brakes, according to passengers. There were a few slight jars and the cars came to a stop, away across the tracks.

Emergency brakes were applied at the switch crossover when the ordinary brakes would not hold, according to Wilhelm, the fireman.

He refused to estimate, however, how fast the train was traveling at the time. His statement to reporters was cut short under orders of P. F. Lynch, assistant road foreman of engines, who interrogated him in Sibley hospital shortly after the wreck.

"The brakes," Wilhelm said,
"didn't seem to hold and the engineer threw on the emergency brakes."

CHAMBER IS URGED TO STUDY LUMP SUM APPROPRIATION PLAN

Changing Conditions Should Be Considered, R. W. Moore Says at Dinner.

MORE THAN 300 ATTEND
MIDWINTER GATHERING

Fenning and Bell Congratulate Members on Accomplishments; Program Given.

The Washington Chamber of Commerce was advised by Representative R. Walton Moore, of Virginia, at its midwinter dinner last night to make careful and repeated surveys in case the lump-sum appropriation plan of congressional contribution to District maintenance is continued. More than 300 persons heard his advice at the Willard hotel.

"Those who are against a fixed ratio continued indefinitely," Representative Moore said, "can hardly justify a fixed annual lump-sum appropriation being continued indefinitely in effect without regard to changing conditions. There should be a careful survey, with a view to determining what the amount should be, and provision made for further inquiry at intervals, say, of five years."

The Rev. James Shera Montgomery, chaplain of the House of Representatives, did not speak, being called away by other business. District Commissioners Fenning and Bell congratulated the chamber on its accomplishments. Martin A. Leese, president, was toastmaster. A musical program accompanied the dinner. Songs of the "good old days" were sung. American flags, poinsettias and greenery were the decorations.

The dinner committee were Martin A. Leese, chairman; Ivan C. Weld, Lee B. Abernathy, Ross P. Andrews, Charles W. Darr, Ralph A. Davis, William E. Dove, Joseph D. Dreyfuss, Harry S. Citizens Council Is Given Recognition by Committee

House District Group Decides to Submit All Bills on Local Affairs to Advisory Body for Opinion.

The citizens advisory council, floundering along since last summer mostly in opposition to the District commissioners, was given official recognition by the House District committee yesterday.

The committee voted that in the future all District bills will be submitted to the council for expression before they are acted upon. This procedure has prevailed in the past with the District commissioners.

The committee was rather precipitate but none the less sincere in opening its arms to the council. This procedure has prevailed in the past with the District commissioners. The committee was rather precipitate but none the less sincere in opening its arms to the council. This procedure has prevailed in the past with the District commissioners.

Representative Blanton, of Texas, heartily agreed, saying it was representative of the people here and that their wishes should be known to the committee. He declared the council represents the people more than the commissioners. Representative Hammer, of North Carolina, granted his assent to the proposal.

At this juncture a newspaperman suggested to Representative McLeod, of Michigan, that the procedure be adopted of submitting all bills to the council. Mr. McLeod put it before the committee and it was adopted.

The matter of how far the Judiciary subcommittee can go in stenographic hearings on the bill to abolish capital punishment here was left to Chairman Zihlman. Representatives Underhill, of Massachusetts, and Blanton are not enthusiastic about the appearance of Clarence J. Darrow and said the expenses of the hearing should be curtailed, inasmuch as the bill does not have a chance, in their opinion.

Mr. Zihlman named Representatives Rathbone, of Illinois, and Hammer as additional members on the subcommittee, because Mr. McLeod had contended that all his present colleagues are against the bill. The hearing will start today, but Mr. Darrow's appearance is not scheduled until February 3.

The utilities subcommittee, headed by Mr. Zihlman, will take up the bill of Representative Moore, of Virginia, to abolish the fare across Key bridge today.

SENATE COMMITTEE REPORTS CAPPER'S WELFARE MEASURE

Bill Commended Coordinates City's Charitable Agencies
Under One Board.

PREFERENCE IS GIVEN OVER GERRY PROPOSAL

Early Action Is Expected; Mothers' Pensions May Be Incorporated.

The local social welfare program was advanced another step yesterday, when the Senate District committee voted to report favorably the bill to coordinate all charitable and correctional agencies under a board of public welfare.

The committee, headed by Senator Capper, accepted this bill in preference to the one sponsored by Senator Gerry, of Rhode Island, providing for two directors, one to administer charitable agencies and the other to preside over correctional bodies.

Justice Frederick L. Siddons told the committee that the parole board feature in Senator Gerry's bill is provided for the District through the Federal parole system. He and Mrs. Lyman B. Swormstedt and John Hilder, all members of the commission on child welfare commission, spoke in behalf of the proposed welfare board.

Mother's Bill Up Soon.

The committee's action means much to those who are seeking the establishment of a mothers' pension fund administered by the proposed board. Senator Capper plans to call up the welfare bill at the earliest possible moment in the hope that it will be enacted and the mothers' pensions administration attached to the board the bill creates.

At the request of local welfare workers Representative Zihlman, chairman of the House District committee, is withholding the mothers' pensions bill in an effort to effect the passage of the welfare bill first.

Chain Bridge Traffic
Plan to Be Studied

Development of Chain bridge and its environs on the Maryland and Virginia shores as an arterial highway to aid tourist traffic desiring to pass around rather than through the congested area of Washington, is being studied by the National Capital park commission, and will be one of the matters called to the attention of the regional planning meetings now possible between the District, Maryland and Virginia.

While officials have looked upon the project as something for future consideration, they also have been precluded from taking it up because there were no authorized bodies to deal with in Virginia and Maryland. Now that these have been appointed, and the Arlington Memorial bridge is about to be started, it is time to give thought to this project, too, it is felt.

Judge Leaves Court
To Inspect Auto Tag

Judge John P. McMahon left the bench in traffic court last night to view the rear license tag of an automobile driven by Miss Helen B. Warren and decide whether the tag was hidden by a bumper.

After pacing a short distance from the car, the judge decided that the tag was hidden but accepted Miss Warren's personal bond, on the ground that she had been an unconscious violator of the law. Miss Warren said she was not the owner of the car, but was visiting her mother at 1225 Eleventh street northwest.

AMERICAN WAR SECRETS REVEALED BY COL. HOUSE

President Wilson's Letters Freely Made Use of in Compiling Book.

FIRST CHAPTERS SUNDAY

Information concerning America's entry into the world war that has never been made public, and other secrets of the stormy years during which Europe was in a turmoil, are disclosed in the confidential papers of Col. E. M. House, the first of which will be printed exclusively in The Washington Post Sunday.

The greater part of these intimate papers consists of extracts from Col. House's personal diary, which he began shortly after his earliest association with Mr. Wilson. This diary was dictated each night to his secretary and comprises an invaluable and revealing record of men and events as they passed in review before Col. House in Washington, in London, in Paris and in Berlin.

The papers of Col. House were brought into book form by Charles Seymour, professor of history at Yale university. In his foreword to the memoirs, Prof. Seymour points out how constantly the letters from President Wilson to Col. House were made use of in the compiling of the book. "The sense of the letters," he writes, "setting forth his (Mr. Wilson's) intimate feelings and policies, has been freely translated into the pages."

That much new information regarding President Wilson will be found through this part of the memoirs is evident from Prof. Seymour's statement that "none of them have been published; many of them were typed by the President himself without a copy being made, often in the private code used only by Col. House and himself."

There is but one way to learn these secrets and that is to start them in The Post next Sunday and continue until they are finished.

CARNEGIE AWARDS GIVEN FOR HEROISM OF WASHINGTONIANS

Widow of Rev. Dayton Miller, Who Lost His Life, Gets $80 Monthly Pension.

TRIED TO SAVE BOY, 10, WHO FELL FROM BOAT

James P. Spellbring, Who Also Went to Lad's Rescue, Receives Medal.

Pittsburgh, Jan. 27 (By A. P.).—The Carnegie hero fund commission, meeting in twenty-second annual session here today, recognized 23 acts of heroism. Fourteen of those cited lost their lives in heroic deeds. In each case a bronze medal was awarded.

The dependents of those who sacrificed their lives were given pensions aggregating $10,144 a year. In six cases money awards totaled $9,600 for educational purposes. Two Washingtonians are among this year's heroes. One of them lost his life, Dayton Baird Miller, 757 Quebec place northwest, clergyman, who died attempting to rescue a boy from drowning at Edgewater, Md., August 22, 1925. His widow received a bronze medal, $75 monthly and $5 additional for a daughter. The other Washingtonian, James P. Spellbring, 1930 Second street northeast, attempted to save a boy from drowning at Edgewater, Md., August 22, 1925. He received a bronze medal.

Hero Fund's Report.

The hero fund commission made public the following resume of the two Washington awards:

"Dayton B. Miller, aged 36, clergyman, died attempting to save Frederic I. Ridenour, aged 10, from drowning, Edgewater, Md., August 22, 1925. Frederic fell overboard from a moving motorboat at the mouth of the South river into rough water 40 feet deep. Miller, fully clothed, dived from the boat and swam to Frederic, who was 35 feet from the boat. Miller placed Frederic on his back and started to swim toward the boat, but a strong current prevented him from making progress. The engine of the boat got out of order, and the distance between Miller and the boat constantly increased. After Miller had supported Frederic for five to ten minutes and had begun to dip under the surface, another man swam from the boat to Miller and took Frederic from Miller's back. Miller sank immediately and was drowned. The other man tried to swim with Frederic to the boat, but in a minute or two Frederic washed from his back and was drowned. The boat after great delay was started, and the man taken on board in an exhausted condition."

$100,000 BALM SUIT AGAINST BANKER IS SUDDENLY SETTLED

Agreement Out of Court Is Announced After Jury Is Dismissed for Day.

TOO OLD TO BE GAY
LOTHARIO, HE WROTE

Action Asking $300,000, Filed by Girl, Pending Against G. B. Caldwell.

New York, Jan. 27 (By A. P.).—The $100,000 breach-of-promise suit brought by Mrs. Clara Eola Shiras against George Brinton Caldwell, banker and clubman, was settled out of court this afternoon after the case had been on trial since yesterday. Announcement of the settlement was made immediately after the jury had been discharged for the day. The terms were not made known.

The termination of the suit came suddenly after Mr. Caldwell had been cross-examined by counsel for Mrs. Shiras, and letters written by him to her were introduced. In one of the letters he wrote: "I can not now pose as a gay Lothario. I am too old and hunched. I was traveling too fast for my years. And you are the principal cause."

Married School Teacher. He explained that he was then living a quiet life in the country, "with a cat and two dogs and four canary birds."

This letter was written in May, 1923, about two months before he married Miss Marion Andrews, a school teacher. It concluded with the words: "I will remember you as a friend and a very good lover."

Another letter, written in March of the same year, also was introduced. Mr. Caldwell admitted that his love for Mrs. Shiras had dwindled between March and May. In a letter written to her in April, he said he thought a man had as much right as a woman to change his mind.

Mr. Caldwell, testifying today, said Mrs. Shiras took a more serious view of their friendship than he did and that she wanted "to travel at a much faster pace than I could go."

Admired Her Gown.

Asked if he had ever helped Mrs. Shiras to put on her evening wraps, Mr. Caldwell admitted that he did on one occasion when they were going to the theater. He told her he loved her in that gown, explaining that he meant he liked her clothes. He denied that he had drawn her to him and embraced her.

Fourteen months ago, Zoe M. Evans, manicurist, filed suit in Boston for $300,000, charging that Mr. Caldwell's marriage had violated his promise to marry her a few months before his engagement to Miss Andrews. This suit is yet to be tried.

24-HOUR RADIO TEST

HITS WALL OF STATIC

WLW Is Heard in Central West, but East Gets Little but Squawks.

New York, Jan. 27 (By A. P.).—A seemingly solid wall of static that raised itself today along the Atlantic coast was the latest obstacle to stand in the way of success of the third international broadcasting test as North American stations resumed their efforts tonight to exchange programs with Europe.

Since 7 o'clock this morning, station WLW, Cincinnati, beat in vain against this wall with a barrage of music in a broadcasting "endurance test" which will end tomorrow at 8 a. m.

Although 300 telegrams from the central part of the United States, the southwest and as far west as Montana reported clear reception, Eastern observers asserted that only static squawks filtered into their sets.

PERSHING PLEADS FOR FAIR BALLOT IN TAGNA-ARICA

TOLERANCE NEEDFUL

General Sails Homeward After Commission Adopts Electoral Law.

Arica, Chile, Jan. 27 (By A. P.).—Gen. Pershing, who has been head of the Tagna-Arica plebiscitary commission, prior to his sailing for the United States on the cruiser Denver today, issued a proclamation "to the people of the plebiscitary area," which says:

"In addressing a word to the electorate of the province prior to my departure for a period of temporary absence, it pleases me to say that my already deep interest in a just outcome of the plebiscite is increased with my personal experience among you, and that your welfare and happiness have become my sincerest wish. Indeed, primarily, the importance of the plebiscite is largely based on the measure of contentment it will bring the people.

"As president of the commission my sole thought has been to insure to all the electors the plebiscite the right unimpaired to express their will at the polls, and thus peacefully determine the eventual sovereignty over the territory, which holds so much that is for them worth while.

Asks for Tolerance.

"After most careful consideration just rules and regulations under the award have been adopted by the commission to fix qualifications and safeguard the rights of the voters on both sides of the contest. Strict application of these rules will provide an opportunity for all the electors freely to register their names and cast their votes. In any fair and honest plebiscite the people are expected to mingle in a spirit of friendly toleration on both sides. Any act during the period that might interfere with the freedom and independence of the people would directly violate the obligation that every participant owes his neighbor.

"It is justice to prevail, as it must, we shall see the contestants foster and encourage amicable relations with each other and maintain toward each other an attitude of deference and consideration. Every worthy patriot of either party will frankly acknowledge and respect the patriotic sentiments of his opponents. Every one who violates this spirit thus declares himself unpatriotic and an enemy to his country's cause.

"It is weakness not to be tolerant, not sacrifice to be fair. Both are demanded by patriotism. Intolerance by the over-zealous is inconsistent with the maintenance of law and order, without which there can be neither a just nor a peaceful solution of the problem.

Urges Sporting Deal.

"It is of little value to proclaim that each elector had the right to vote according to the dictates of his own conscience, unless both contestants adopted and honestly

Doctor Warns Women Against Brimless Hats

New York, Jan. 27 (By A. P.).—Women who wear brimless hats squint, said Dr. Charles Collins Francis, speaking today at the convention of the Retail Milliners Association of America. Squinting, he explained, wrinkles the face and hardens the muscles, therefore if she is to save her face, millady must don the broad brimmed bonnet. He predicted a revolution in women's millinery, the small hat yielding to the large.

Expressing his ideas on the harmful effects of the universally popular small hat, Dr. Francis said:

"It exerts pressure on the delicate circulatory structure of the head. This interferes with the circulation around the forehead and results unquestionably in skin starvation and coarseness of the skin."

adhere to sportsman's idea of a square deal.

"That men should adhere to their heritage of patriotism is worthy; they should command respect instead of animosity. Without harmony and good feeling neither peace nor happiness is possible, but where there is tolerance and friendly cooperation, bitterness and hatred must disappear.

"Between all peoples there is an obligation that rests upon the educated and refined to teach the less fortunate moderation and forbearance, and it ought to be the aim of recognized leadership to promote and encourage mutual understanding and fair dealing.

"We are not only engaged in a contest for title to this historic province, but we are here to carry out legally a solemn agreement made between two great peoples to open the door of lasting peace between them. Responsibility falls to the leaders and electorate of both sides to adopt generous tolerance toward their political opponents.

"With keen interest in the welfare of this territory I wish in conclusion to address myself earnestly to each and every individual elector of high or low estate, whether Chilean or Peruvian, urge you to unite others as you would have others do unto you, and on this firm foundation build securely an edifice of permanent peace."

The Tagna-Arica plebiscitary commission today unanimously approved the electoral law which is to govern the plebiscite.

FIVE LOSE THEIR LIVES

Mother and Three Children, Trapped in Blazing Room, Perish.

New York, Jan. 27 (By A. P.).—Five persons lost their lives in two early morning tenement house fires today.

Mrs. Anna Falta and three of her seven children were the victims of the first fire. They were trapped in a blazing bedroom. Her husband, William, in an adjoining bedroom, was awakened by his wife's screams. He tried to fight his way through the flames, but was driven back with serious burns. George Kissen, the fifth victim, was suffering from a wound in the head inflicted by robbers several nights ago, and was unable to leave his bed. His wife, a paralytic, was rescued.

HID DEAD WIFE IN WELL; FILED SUIT FOR DIVORCE

Letter Carrier, Now Accused of Killing Woman, Declares She Hanged Herself.

MISSING FOR TWO MONTHS

New Philadelphia, Ohio, Jan. 27 (By A. P.).—Harvey Haver, 40, mail carrier, of Newcomerstown, near here, filed suit for divorce from his wife, Katherine, six weeks after he said he cut her body down from the rafters of their home and stuffed it into an abandoned well. Two weeks later, he said, he paid a premium on her life insurance.

That was part of the story Haver told officials today after almost 24 hours of uninterrupted questioning in connection with the woman's death.

He has stoically maintained she committed suicide December 1, but an affidavit charging him with first degree murder has been sworn to by Coroner J. S. Lewis.

Haver said he took all the steps he outlined because he was fearful he would be blamed for his

New York, Jan. 27 (By A. P.).— Republicans and Democrats marching arm in arm to the polls in 1928 and voting a nonpartisan ticket, with Calvin Coolidge for President and Gov. Al Smith for Vice President, was pictured as a possibility by Chauncey M. Depew, in an address today before the Pilgrims society. He described the present as the "most wonderful age of non-partisanship."

"I was born in a day of party politics," Mr. Depew said, "and as a lad I learned to shout for my party, march for my party, fight for my party and starve for my party.
If necessary. What do we find today?"

"A tax bill, always the subject for acute party feeling, being passed unanimously by the House of Rep-

Senate with comparatively little agitation. I think Cal Coolidge must have studied old Ben Franklin, for he has decided not to go up in an and meet the response of the people for economy and thrift.

ARMY CHIEFS SEEM INCLINED TO ALLOW MITCHELL TO QUIT

Heads Are Expected to Let No
Minor Considerations Halt Resignation.

OFFICER'S BRIEF NOTE
NEARING WHITE HOUSE

Speculation Arises Over Form of Acceptance Letter Will Receive.

(By Associated Press)

Col. William Mitchell resigned from the army yesterday, and unless the first impulses of War Department officials are overturned, the resignation will be accepted.

Some technicalities may stand in the way, but those under whom the air service officer has served, seem disposed to let no minor considerations interfere with his expressed desire to terminate on February 1 his stormy career as a military man.

He probably will go on the lecture platform to continue his campaign for greater development of aviation. It was as a part of this campaign that he made the public charges of maladministration which led to his court-martial conviction on charges of infringing military discipline.

Letter Is Short.

The sentence of five years' suspension pronounced by the court-martial had been approved but two days ago by President Coolidge.
The resignation was sent early yesterday to Brig. Gen. Samuel D.
Rockenbach, commanding the district of Washington, who referred it without comment to the adjutant general of the army. The latter transmitted it to the War Secretary's office. It merely said:

"I hereby tender my resignation as an officer in the United States army, to take effect February 1, 1926."
As the brief letter progressed through military channels, drawing step by step closer to the White House, where final decision will be made as to its acceptance or rejection, speculation narrowed down to the question of what form of acceptance it would receive. Opinions differed. Some military chiefs, familiar with army practice, believed the resignation would be accepted as presented. Others predicted it would be indorsed to show that the acceptance was "for the good of the service."

Sigma Enough Seen.

While Secretary Davis gave no clue as to what his recommendations to the President would be, it is understood that he is inclined to favor acceptance of the resignation as it is, disregarding the "good of the service" issue, unless the legal opinions he has sought run counter to that procedure. It is pointed out in this connection that the fact, recorded on Col. Mitchell's service record, that he resigned after he had been convicted by court-martial and sentenced to five years' suspension from rank, duty and command, would be of itself sufficient to allow the "good of the service" signigma to be ignored.

Details of Col. Mitchell's future plans were lacking last night, due to his refusal to make any public announcement before final action on his resignation is taken. His closest friends, however, furnished the foundation for reports that he has entered into a contract for a nation-wide lecture tour and later plans to hunt big game in Africa.

It remains certain that the air critic will utilize every means at his command to carry on his crusade for a unified air service and to bring about revolutionary changes in the present administration of aviation by the Army and Navy Departments.

Would End Tangle.

If accepted, the resignation will provide a way out of the tangle in which Col. Mitchell became involved as a result of his persistent attacks on the two departments and his ardent struggle to have air power recognized as one of the three coequal elements of national defense. It also would automatically commute the five-year suspension sentence imposed on him last month when the court-martial found him guilty of insubordination for denouncing the departments for "almost treason-able administration" of the national defense through failure to give aviation the place he believed it entitled to in the national defense system.

In the opinion of many who have followed the officer's activities, his resignation is an anti-climax to the fight he has waged. They do not believe he will be able, as a civilian, to keep the sustained public interest in aviation development which has marked his struggles since 1915 when he first clashed with his superiors on the question of adequate national defense. As an officer in the army, recognized for gallantry in war and his fearles-ness in making peace-time assaults upon the constituted army control system, it is pointed out, he achieved more than it is predicted he will be able to outside its ranks.

Clashed With Chief.

Col. Mitchell entered the army from civil life in the Spanish war days. During the world war, as a "flying general," commanding the air forces of the first American army in France, he achieved distinguishment and upon his return home was appointed assistant chief of the air service. Then he clashed with his chief, Maj. Gen. Charles T. Menoher, who finally requested and was given duty in Hawaii, being succeeded by Maj. Gen. Mason
M. Patrick, present head of the service.

Differences over the united air force project, persistently put forward under Mitchell's leadership, continued to expand. He opposed the combined army and navy general boards' opinions and a clash followed as to the comparative value of the aircraft over capital ships.
He contended that dreadnoughts had been made obsolete by the department of air bombers. This controversy was carried into the press, made the subject of signed articles in magazines and finally published in book form under the air officer's signature.

Brings Conflict to Climax.

Meanwhile, he appeared as chief witness before congressional investigating committees and gave evidence which led Secretary Weeks to decide against his reappointment as assistant chief of the air service.
Reverting then to his rank of colonel, he was transferred to duty as air officer of the Eighth corps area, with headquarters at San Antonio, Tex. It was there and in connection with the loss of the navy dirigible Shenandoah and the failure of the PN-9 No. 1 flight to Hawaii that he issued the two public statements that brought his long conflict with army authorities to its climax and resulted in his trial by court-martial.

For his services in the world war
Mitchell received both the valor cross and the service medal in addition to many foreign decorations.
The trial court took cognizance of his war record when it found him guilty of conduct to the prejudice of good order and military discipline, a charge under which he could have been sentenced to dismissal from the army instead of being given the five-year suspension.

OPERATORS DECLINE
PROPOSAL OF MINERS

Men Had Suggested 2-Year Contract at Old Scale as Parley Basis.

Philadelphia, Jan. 27 (By A.
P.).—Proposal of the mine workers containing a provision for a two-year contract at the old wage scale as a basis for continued negotiations to end the strike was voted down today by the anthracite operators. It was rejected on the ground that "it contains no protection for the industry, no means for preventing deadlocks, no assurance against strikes."

This was the important action today of the joint conference, and adjourning was taken to tomorrow afternoon.

The conference is once more in the position of having no formal proposal before it unless a new plan or a modification of rejected proposals are offered.

The two-year agreement proposed by the miners was a modification of the plan offered by E. J. Lynett, publisher of the Scranton Times.

LEAGUE COVENANT PROPOSED FORMING COURT FOR WORLD

Elihu Root Helped to Draft Protocol. Now Accepted by 48 Nations.

TRIBUNAL FUNCTIONING WITH AMERICAN JUDGE

Continued Pressure Forced Senate to Act After Pocketing Hacking Plan.

(By the Associated Press.)
Establishment of "a permanent court of international justice," was proposed under article 14 of the covenant of the League of Nations. The league called together in 1920 a commission of jurists who drew up plans for the court. Elihu Root was a member. These plans, as embodied in the "court protocol," have been accepted by 48 nations. They provide for a court of 11 judges and 4 deputies, chosen by the league. The court can pass on such international disputes as may be presented, but its opinions are binding only when the nations involved consent.

The first panel of judges was elected in 1921, and soon afterward the court began to function at Geneva. It has handed down a number of decisions. One of the judges is John Bassett Moore, an American.

Voice in Elections Wanted.
Conditional ratification of the court protocol by the Senate was proposed by President Harding on February 27, 1925. He recommended reservations saying the United States accepted no "legal relation" to the league, would expect a vote in the election of judges, and must give its consent before the protocol could be amended. These stipulations and several others are contained in the ratification resolution adopted last night.

President Harding's proposal promptly was pocketed by the Senate foreign relations committee, where a majority made up of opponents of the League of Nations said it meant entering the league by the back door.

After Harding's death, President Coolidge repeatedly urged ratification, and his recommendation was supported by petitions from many sources. Church and other organizations conducted a nation-wide campaign for ratification. Others, including many enemies of the league, urged rejection.

Pepper Proposal Dropped.
In May, 1924, the foreign relations committee voted down a ratification resolution by Senator Swanson, Virginia, embodying the Harding reservations, and approved instead a proposal by Senator Pepper, Pennsylvania, to organize a new court under American auspices. But this proposal got no further.

The pressure for action continued, and at the instance of the Democratic leader, Senator Robinson, the Senate agreed last spring to take up the court in December, with the Swanson resolution as the basis of discussion.

Soon after the debate began, it became apparent that the court's opponents were fighting for time. For the second time in its history the Senate voted Monday to end the filibuster by invoking its rule limiting debate.

Yesterday's ratification, based on a revised version of the original Swanson resolution, does not automatically take the United States into the league. The reservations adopted first must be submitted by the State Department to the other member nations and each must declare its willingness to admit the new member under the conditions specified.

Of Rubber Cost Urged
(By the Associated Press.)
Another move by House Democrats to ascertain the profits of American rubber manufacturers was made yesterday with the introduction of a resolution by Representative Shallenberger of Nebraska, directing the Federal trade commission to investigate this subject.

The proposal is in line with efforts by Mr. Shallenberger to broaden the recent inquiry by the House commerce committee in foreign rubber monopolies to include the trade in this country. Representative Black (Democrat), New York, Monday introduced a resolution to create a special House committee to conduct such an inquiry.

SENATE VOTES AMERICA INTO COURT BY 76 TO 17

soon as the 48 signatory states agree to accept American membership under the drastic terms laid down by the reservations. How soon these nations will signify their willingness to accept the reservations or whether all of them will accept, remains to be seen.

Court Statute Involved.

Up to the last moment fear was entertained by the court opponents that the Swanson reservations would be changed, especially the one which stipulates that America joins the court only after the signatory nations agree that no advisory opinions shall be rendered by the court on any matter in which the United States "has or claims to have" an interest. As America can claim to have an interest in almost any dispute, and as this reservation implies that the court will always seek America's permission before rendering an advisory opinion, opponents are hopeful that it will operate as a deterrent, especially as it involves an amendment to the statute of the court.

The galleries were partly empty when the vote came though they were packed during the afternoon. All attempts to amend the Swanson reservations or other substitutes were swept aside.

Moses' Reservation Defeated.
Senator Moses' reservation, providing that the court shall not enforce its decrees or advisory opinions by war was defeated, 69 to 22. The roll call was as follows:

For the reservation:
Republicans—Borah, Brookhart, Coughess, Frazier, Harrell, Johnson, La Follette, McKinley, Moses, Norris, Nye, Pine, Robinson, of Indiana; Schall, Watson, Weller, Williams—17.

Democrats—Blease, Copeland, Reed (Missouri), Wheeler, 4.
Farm-Labor—Shipstead, 1.
Total—22.

Against the reservation:
Republicans—Bingham, Butler, Cameron, Capper, Cummins, Curtis, Dale, Deneen, Edge, Ernst, Fess, Gillett, Goff, Gooding, Hale, Howell, Jones (Washington), Keyes, Lenroot, McLean, McMaster, McNary, Means, Metcalf, Norbeck, Oddie, Pepper, Phipps, Reed (Pennsylvania), Sackett, Shortridge, Smoot, Stanfield, Wadsworth, Warren, Williams, 38.

Democrats—Ashurst, Bayard, Bratton, Broussard, Bruce, Caraway, Edwards, Ferris, Fletcher, George, Gerry, Glass, Harris, Harrison, Heflin, Kendrick, King, McKellar, Mayfield, Neely, Overman, Pittman, Ransdell, Robinson (Arkansas), Sheppard, Simmons, Smith, Stephens, Swanson, Trammell, Tyson, Underwood, Walsh, 33.
Total—69.

7 to 1 Clause Rejected.

Senator Reed then presented his reservation to protect the United States against Great Britain's 7 to 1 vote. Senator Fernald made a short speech prior to the vote, in which he urged adoption of the reservation. The Senator from Maine brought amusement to the galleries by referring to Senator Heflin as the senator who should now rush to New York and receive congratulations from Wall Street for having assisted Morgan & Co. in loaning money at 7 per cent.

Several reservations by Senator Shipstead were voted down overwhelmingly. The Shipstead reservation providing that no questions concerning loans which America has made to foreign governments should come before the court was defeated, 74-16.

The Moses substitute for the Swanson reservations, which was the original Pepper plan, reported out of the foreign relations committee last year, was beaten, 72-21. Senator Pepper voted against it, but his colleague, Senator Reed, of Pennsylvania, voted for it. Senator Williams' substitute was defeated viva voce.

It was clear as the hour of 7 o'clock approached that senators wanted the final vote. A last attempt to amend by Senator Reed was overwhelmingly beaten.

Johnson Makes Final Plea.

Just before the final vote, Senator Hiram Johnson made a last dramatic appeal. After reading the names of Republican senators who had favored the League of Nations with the Lodge reservations in the league fight, he said:

"I challenge any Republican to stand up now and say that he favors ratification of the treaty of Versailles or the League of Nations, with or without reservations. 'The next step is to take us into the league,' Senator Johnson warned. 'Some senator' said today that the President should be commended for finally altering the traditional policy of the United States. And it is being altered by the great Republican party. God help it! The senator from California shouted, Senator Johnson then warned that the fight would go on by those who favored America's traditional policy."

Earlier in the afternoon Senator Borah had made an appeal for adoption of the Moses reservation outlawing war as a means of enforcing the decrees of the court. He contended that if the United States joined the court the time was opportune for the nation to take the lead in making it an agency of peace instead of an agency of war. "We are 110,000,000 people devoted to peace," he said, "having practiced it for 150 years. If we refuse to lead in the move to outlaw war, who will ever lead?"

"If all the nations behind the court insist that they will resort to war every time they think it is necessary, how long will it take to establish peace through the instrumentality of this court?"

War Measures Defended.

Both Senator Lenroot and Senator Walsh defended war as a means of enforcing the court's decrees. In response to Senator Borah's contention that public opinion, nine times out of ten, would be more effective in enforcing decrees than military force, Senator Walsh wanted to know how long it would take to establish peace if force gave way to public opinion.

Senator Lenroot said that a vote for the Moses reservation outlawing war was a vote against the court, because the reservation would have the effect of making the powers refuse to accept America as a member. It would be necessary for the powers to amend the covenant of the League of Nations authorizing war before the reservation could be accepted by them. Senator Lenroot said:

"This caused Senator Couzens to say he proposed to vote for the Moses reservation, although he intended to vote for the court. Even at the expense of delay in America's joining the court, it would be well worth while for America to take the lead in outlawing war as a means of enforcing the court's decrees. Senator Couzens said. Senator Reed then rose to say:

"My ears have been shocked more today than ever before in my life. I have heard all those who have been preaching peace for the past two years now become the advocates of military force and war. It's about time to pull the mask of hypocrisy off the faces of pretenders. It's now admitted that the League of Nations is a compact for the purpose of making war and that we can not ask the league not to make war without amending that bloody document."

Outlawing War Opposed.

Shortly after the proceedings started, Senator Underwood made a speech supporting the court. He expressed regret that the reservations had been enlarged.

Senator Pepper, who has become one of the leading court champions, said he was opposed to the reservation to outlaw war. No practical purpose would be accomplished by it, he said, because if nations wanted to go to war they would find some pretext other than a decision of the world court in order to accomplish their purpose.

Senator Stephens said he was for the court, but explained that he had been very much against the clause, and that he believed the 96 hours provided under the clause rule too short a time to give to consideration of a subject of such importance.

Says Duty Not Done.

Senator Williams followed Senator Stephens. He elaborated the points he already had made in the debate, namely that the United States now had no right to attach its signature to the protocol of December 16, 1920.

"Mr. President," he said, "I charge that the Senate has not done its full duty by this question. I sincerely trust that senators, when they return to their constituents, will not be confronted with the question of whether they have done their full duty to protect the independence and integrity of the United States."

Senator Sackett spoke in favor of the court and eloquized President Coolidge. Senator Blease made a speech in support of his amendment to have every State vote if the s.p. ate States of the British Empire vote, in the election of judges. After the final vote, Senator Bruce made a brief speech congratulating President Coolidge on having obtained ratification of the protocol.

Blease Declares America Is Getting Into Bad Company Through Protocol.

RAISES RACE QUESTION

Senator Blease, of South Carolina, enlivened the debate on the world court yesterday by asking Southern senators some embarrassing questions and by bringing into the debate the silk pajamas and high-heeled evening slippers of the young woman who was arrested here Monday after the automobile she was driving crashed into a lamppost.

The senator read into the record the story in The Post referring to this incident and emphasized the last paragraphs, which stated that she had been partaking of "embassy refreshments." He made the point that the donors of such refreshments were the people America would join if the nation went into the world court.

Shortly before references had been made in the debate to the fact that both Haiti and Liberia have representatives in the assembly of the league and would have as much voting power as America in the election of judges.

"I'd like to ask the senator from Alabama (Mr. Heflin) and other senators," said Mr. Blease, "whether he realizes that he is voting America into a court where a full-blooded nigger will sit side by side with the American representative. I'd like to ask him if he is ready to submit the fate of Southern women and Southern men to a nigger judge, for Haiti will probably have a judge on the world court."

Senator Blease continued his speech until his time expired. When his time was up he said he was glad, as he thought he might say things he ought not to say if he continued.

FUEL ENGINEER SAYS COAL COSTS TOO HIGH

overhead, interest paid on money needed to finance the purchase of the coal and a fair profit.

A new angle was injected into the investigation when it was learned that E. J. McVann, representative of the Smokeless Coal Operators association of Virginia, who at the outset of the hearing told the committee that coal was leaving the mines at approximately $4.50 a ton, is prepared to testify that the prices have gone up since he first appeared.

Prices Here Steady.

The committee developed that despite the fluctuations in mine price, the price here has remained steadily at between $14 and $15 a ton.

W. W. Griffith, local dealer, told the committee that ignorance on the part of the public is responsible largely for its high coal bill. He has in his shop a sign in bold letters pointing out, he said, that the run of mine coal which he sells at $7.50 a ton has as much fuel value as that for which he receives $14. The public, however, insists on the choice little egg sizes, without any slack.

George S. Brackett, of the coal statistical bureau, subscribed to, he said, by the principal operators in the Fairmount field, told the committee of the much lower prices prevailing in that field and substantiated the claim of Senator Neely, of West Virginia, that it is adaptable to domestic use. The very best grade can be delivered here at $6.09 a ton, he said.

Hearing Resumed Today.

Frank E. Boal, newspaper man, told the committee how he and a group of others bought a car of coal direct from the Pennsylvania mines, delivered here at $5.84 a ton. Local dealers are charging $10 for the same grade, he said, but several dealers present jumped up and said they were charging only $7.50.

The hearing will continue this afternoon.

SENATE GIVES REVENUE MEASURE RIGHT OF WAY

Norris Opens Assault by Demanding Greater Income Tax Publicity.

OTHERS TO ASK CHANGES

(By Associated Press.)
The tax reduction bill was given the right of way by the Senate last night immediately after it had completed action on the world court.

The assault on the tax reduction bill was opened formally earlier in the day by Senator Norris, Republican, of Nebraska, with the introduction of an amendment proposing to open all income tax returns to public inspection, a provision repealed in the pending bill.

This was the first of several amendments which will be proposed by the group opposing the compromise reached by Republican and Democratic members of the finance committee on the House bill. Informal conferences among the group also have developed serious opposition to the proposed repeal of the inheritance tax and to reductions in the surtax rates as now provided by the bill.

The Norris amendment would give wider publicity than is now permitted, through publication of the amounts of income tax paid. The amendment now in force was adopted two years ago by the votes of Democrats and Republican insurgents, but Senate Democrats have indicated they would make no fight at this time as a party for retention of publicity.

Despite the organized fight against the bill which now appears certain, both Republican and Democratic leaders have declared they will make every effort to bring about final action on the measure early in February to insure tax reduction by March 15, when first income tax installments are due.

Of Many Pre-Lenten Parties?

It's a brave Evening Gown that doesn't look a bit tired by the time January rolls around. Even though you have worn them a lot your favorites may stand a few more wearings, but how about the host of gay festivities that are always on the calendar just before Lent?

Won't you enjoy them more if fortified with a new Gown or two—a glistening metal brocade model, for instance, and one of fragile, filmy golden lace? Such gowns and many others are now priced so moderately there's no extravagance in treating yourself to a new one.

THE SENATE'S DECISION.

The Senate by an ample majority has approved the protocol of the world court, with reservations which are intended to safeguard the United States against commitments to the league of nations, against advisory opinions affecting American interests, and against departure from traditional American policies. Provision is made for withdrawing from the court at the will of Congress, and also for requiring the consent of Congress before any case can be submitted to the court.

The Post has never favored American membership in the league of nations and has opposed the world court because of its relationship to the league. The Senate has made reservations which it thinks will meet with the approval of the people. The Senate believes that the people favor adherence to the world court. The Post deplors the adoption of the resolution, but if it is the will of the people that the United States should go into the court, well and good. We can only hope that in the future they will not regret the action of the Senate.

The vulgarities that shock people most in public are the ones they enjoy most in private.

THE ENORMOUS PUBLIC PAY ROLL.

It is rather a surprising statement that the National Industrial Conference Board makes that one out of every eleven persons engaged in work of all kinds is paid out of public funds. That is to say that for every ten persons in private enterprise there is one who is dependent in some way upon the public. This includes government employees, persons dependent upon pensions, and occupants of charitable institutions and penitentiaries. The number of persons dependent upon the public for a living has increased approximately 60 per cent in twelve years but is not so great as it was during the war period, when there were more people serving the Federal government than at any other time. In 1918 at the end of the war there were 5,129,000 in public employ, including the army and navy. Three years later the number had been almost cut in two, when it fell to 2,786,000. This year the number has been increased by more than 100,000. It is estimated that the amount of money paid out for this army of public dependents is $4,300,000,000. If the cost of maintaining some 500,000 persons in charitable, correctional and penal institutions and that paid out for pensions to soldiers, widows, and superannuated employees, is added, the total sum paid to those on the public pay roll will reach $5,140,000,000. If this vast sum were distributed equally among persons gainfully occupied but not holding public jobs, it would amount to $135 per person each year, and for every man woman and child in the United States it would mean an average of $46 a year. The Federal government alone employs 564,718 persons, exclusive of legislative employees, the army, navy and marine corps, coast guard and the District of Columbia.

If only this thrifty feeling you have weeks after Christmas could be retroactive.

WOMEN AND COLD.

Reports come from Paris that a series of tests to determine the relative ability of the sexes to withstand low temperatures has shown that women are much less likely than men to succumb to cold. In a recent competition women won all the tests. Various reasons are assigned for their greater immunity to cold. It is said that it is principally due to a delicate layer of fat protecting the body and to better heart action and supply of blood, because the arteries of women are larger than those of men. An expert woman swimmer remained in water at the freezing point for fifteen minutes, while her spouse, who had just won the Christmas swimming championship, had to give up. The results of the Paris competition are not surprising. In recent years women have demonstrated their ability as swimmers. While several men have succeeded in swimming the English channel, a supreme test of skill and endurance, no woman has yet accomplished it, but the efforts of Gertrude Ederle and a noted Argentine woman swimmer last year certainly indicate that it will not be long before some female succeeds in this difficult undertaking. In swimming the English channel the two greatest obstacles that a swimmer has to overcome are the tides and the intense cold. Neither Miss Ederle nor the Argentine swimmer had to leave the water because of the cold. Apparently they lacked the strength to battle against the tides.

However, it didn't require the Paris tests to demonstrate woman's greater power to resist cold. Evidence of this superiority on the part of the female of the species is to be found any day in any large city. It has long been a source of amazement to men how apparently frail women can go about with almost bare legs and low shoes, and with throat and neck uncovered, and still not complain of the cold.

The two things that know no national boundary lines are love and capital.

THE DISTRICT IN CONGRESS.

The committees of both houses of Congress appear to be giving more consideration to the views of the people of Washington than ever before. In the House committee on the District of Columbia yesterday favorable action was voted on a motion offered by Representative McLeod, of Michigan, that in the future all proposed legislation relating to the District shall be referred to the citizens' advisory council, which represents 88 citizens' associations, and which in the past has submitted its views and recommendations to the District commissioners.

About the same time the Senate District committee approved a bill drawn by Senator Capper, of Kansas, chairman of the committee, which would create a board of public welfare in preference to the Gerry bill, which would place in the hands of the commissioners all matters pertaining to Washington. The Capper measure has the support of a large number of residents of the city and nearly all of the citizens' association.

Many persons interested in the welfare of Washington have protested against the apparent lack of interest on the part of Congress in matters that are vital to Washington. District days in the House have been passed over and measures that demanded early consideration have been forced to wait. Last Monday the House leaders declined to permit the District committee to bring up the majority and minority reports on a bill to provide for the construction of two bathing beaches to take the place of the one which was legislated out of existence at the last session. This is a bill that should be passed at the earliest possible moment, if the people of Washington are to be given the proper facilities for bathing during the next summer. Last year much suffering resulted from the want of bathing beaches, and several boys met death by drowning in dangerous waters.

The fact that the members of the District committees in both houses have concluded that the people of Washington should have a voice in determining what is needed in the way of legislation leads to the hope that ultimately the District of Columbia may be represented on the floor of each house of Congress.

An old-timer doesn't care how cold it is, just so people won't think it is as cold as the weather of his boyhood.

JUDICIAL SALARIES.

The salary of the Chief Justice of the United States is $15,000 per annum. Therein the Chief Justice is $500 better off than any of the associate justices, but he receives less by $2,500 than the local magistrates in the city of New York and $7,500 less than the judges of the court of appeals of the same State. The House committee on the judiciary has under consideration a bill to provide better pay for the Federal judiciary, and recently heard two of the foremost lawyers in the United States, who appeared before the committee in behalf of the bill. Charles E. Hughes, of New York, a former justice, should be competent to judge of the adequacy of the compensation of judges. Mr. Hughes asserted that the salaries paid to the justices of the Supreme Court were "disgracefully small," and that of the circuit and district judges far below what they should be. The former justice declared that he does not care a snap of the fingers for Fourth of July orations about the love for America. The way to show that love is to pay a decent living wage to an American judge. "We don't want men who are simply seeking a job for our judges," he asserted, and he expressed the opinion that men who are looking for something "on the side" are not ideally fitted for the job.

John W. Davis intimated very broadly that it is impossible to secure a man of independent thought as a judge if he has to keep his mind on his income. "If our judges are to be kept on their present meager salaries," he said, "they should be required to take an oath of celibacy, before being sworn into office, so as not to expose their dependents to the hardships such salaries entail." Mr. Davis must have had in mind the remark of Chief Justice Fuller, the father of seven daughters, who once said that all these daughters were grown up before he discovered that there was anything to a chicken but wings and legs. He always served himself last.

The fact that all Federal judges are inadequately paid has been recognized by committees of Congress for years, but attempts at increasing those salaries have failed of success thus far. Now that Congress has provided decent compensation and adequate clerical assistance for itself, it may see its way clear to do likewise for the judiciary.

Five-sixths of the world's people live outside the United States and struggle along without a slogan.

THE SCHOOL BOARD INQUIRY.

The subcommittee of the House committee on the District of Columbia is performing a valuable service in conducting hearings on the Gasque bill, which provides for the election of members of the board of education by the people of Washington. There appears to be a growing sentiment that almost any other method than that of having the members appointed by the judges of the District Supreme court is to be preferred. When the prevailing sentiment has been crystallized and made known to Congress the method most generally approved by the citizens should be adopted.

Charges have been made by reputable residents of Washington who have children in the schools that under the present system there is extravagance in the administration of the five-year building program for schools; that members of the school board are arrogant, discourteous to parents, unresponsive to the real needs of the schools and, in some cases, unfitted to serve. All these charges should be sifted by Congress, and doubtless they will be. Representative Reid, of Illinois, chairman of the subcommittee, has indicated that supporters of the Gasque bill must build up a case that will justify Congress in changing the present method of appointing the members of the school board. This is entirely fair to the advocates of the bill.

For a number of years there has been friction in the school board, perhaps no more than exists among the school authorities of other cities, but it has been sufficient to cause on occasions much bitterness among the members and to invite criticism by the public. The election of members of the board by the voters of the District, while it might not insure complete harmony in the board, would place the responsibility on the people, and in that respect at least would operate to minimize criticism. It is to be hoped that the District committee will make its inquiry as thorough as possible and that all persons interested will air their views, so that some definite action may be taken.

People who have "nerves" and think they need more rest usually need more work.

JOINT COMMITTEE ON TAXATION.

One of the important features of the proposed new tax law of 1926 is a joint committee on taxation, consisting of five senators and five representatives, to investigate and report to Congress on the operation, effects and administration of the Federal system of income and other internal revenue taxes, and proposals for simplification and illumination of the system. All members are to serve without pay. It is believed that Congress should be better advised as to the systems and methods employed in the administration of the internal revenue laws with a view to the needs of legislation in the future; and that there should be a closer relation between Congress and the internal revenue bureau.

One of the evils connected with all internal revenue laws since 1918 is the failure of the average member of Congress to understand what the more or less technical provisions of the laws mean, and how they operate. These laws have given thousands of lawyers and special attorneys a harvest in the matter of their application, and for some time there has been recognized a need of simplicity in the laws and publicity in their administration. Large taxpayers have been compelled to pay high fees, and Congress has been more or less in the dark as to the necessity for those expenditures by taxpayers.

The joint committee on taxation is expected to throw more light on the situation, and to furnish Congress and the taxpayers with much needed information.

Alchemists since the dawn of civilization, poring over crucibles and retorts, have attempted to learn the secrets of nature and to transmute base metals into gold. Weird novels have been written around these attempts, and scientific works by the hundreds are to be found in every library in which records of such experiments are recorded. Now come forward two Dutch chemists, Drs. Smits and Karsens, with the claim that they have succeeded in so separating and reassembling the electrons in their atoms of lead that they have actually produced mercury, or quicksilver, from the base metal. Artificial rubies have long been manufactured commercially, and electrical treatment of pure carbon has been made to produce miniature diamonds. If these experimenters have accomplished what they claim, the dream of the alchemists may yet be realized, and possibly some French scientists may discover a means for transmuting French paper francs into American gold dollars.

That a woman in an official capacity can succeed where men have failed has been demonstrated by Mrs. Florence E. S. Knapp, secretary of state of New York, who in the face of bitter opposition by Tammany and politicians generally installed voting machines in a number of the New York city precincts at the last election. Now Mrs. Knapp purposes to equip every voting booth in New York with a voting machine. She announces that voting by machine will not only insure more rapid counting of the ballots but will result in a saving of $350,000 a year. And the best of it is she has made the men like 'em.

It's a heap of comfort to know that Left Ericson's reputation is safe from the smart Alecks. They don't know enough about him to prove that he was a drunkard, a cuss, a poker player, a cigarette fiend and a Charleston dancer.

The Worst Story I Have Heard Today
 By Will Rogers

The Worst Joke I heard today was told to me by my good friend Mr. Igglehart, of Westbury, Long Island. If your Country is short a railroad or a Steamship line, why Mr. Igglehart and Russell Grace and some of them will put in one for you. They will not only put in the line but find the Country for you. They just built one across the Andes mountains in Chili, where nothing but a Burro had ever been before. I wish they would build one to California that wouldn't stop every time it saw a couple of houses congregated together.

Mrs. Igglehart is real Spanish and a Native of Spain and Chili and they go over to Spain quite often. He is a Polo Player and he plays with the King of Spain, a man that annoys a ball quite frequently with the old mallet. So Mr. Igglehart told me this story that happened to the King and the King related it to them one night at a Dinner.

The King is very fond of taking Motor trips Incognito. (That's a kind of way they go when they want to go for pleasure.) He stopped at a little out-of-the-way Inn away back in the mountains.

"I am sure they won't know me here," he said. Well, they didn't know him there. They treated him just like an ordinary traveler. So much so that when he went to shave the next morning there was no mirror in his room. So he went into the Inn yard in his shirt sleeves, and a chambermaid brought him an old broken bit of mirror and stood watching him as he shaved.

"You are not just an ordinary traveler, are you?"
 "Why do you ask me that?"
 "I don't know, but there is something about you. Perhaps you belong to the royal court?"
 "Yes, I do," replied the King.
 "Oh, then you work for His Majesty?"
 "Yes, I do," he answered.
 "And what do you do for him?"
 "I shave him," retorted the King of all the Spaniards.

The Moral of this story is use a Safety Razor and you won't need a mirror, and you won't be found out.

PRESS COMMENT

No Wonder!

Detroit News: Practically every member of the Washington ball team is said to be asking an increase in salary. This is the natural outcome of working in the same town with Congress.

Coming to Him.

Ohio State Journal: The enemies engaged by war have just about died out within us and the only trace of the revengeful spirit which we can detect by careful introspection is a lingering hope that the former Kaiser's wife is mean to him.

The Einstein Theory.

Los Angeles Times: Every time some high-browed scientist puts on the gloves and knocks out Prof. Einstein's theory of relativity a lot of people stand up and give three hearty cheers. They haven't the slightest idea what the theory is, but this treatment seems to put it on the sporting page and they figure that Einstein is only another welterweight.

Story With No Climax.

Philadelphia Inquirer: Here is a story without a climax. A Trenton pastor was arrested by Camden officials on the hit-and-run charge. When he drove up to police headquarters for his hearing the New Jersey sleuths became curious concerning two large suitcases in the rear of his machine, and opened them. They contained Bibles.

Governmental Machines.

Minneapolis Journal: The governmental machine is complex, cumbersome, wasteful. It has been the American habit to add a bureau here, a commission there, a board in another place. Sometimes the additions have been dumped into a convenient department; often they have been made independent. Always there have been duplications and wastes. For many years this process has gone on, and all efforts to simplify and coordinate on lines of common sense and business efficiency have been defeated.

BUCKWHEAT CAKES.

These days bring memories of early winter mornings on the farm when the snow lay a foot deep on the level and breakfast in the cozy warmth of the kitchen was before daylight, says the Detroit News. Lo, the mellow lamp-lit room, the frosted windows, the savory smell of coffee coming to a boil, music of sputtering batter on hot griddle irons—and buckwheat cakes, not two or three, but all you could eat. Can't you taste 'em now? And how fillin' they were! Nothing else sticks to the ribs like griddle cakes. Maybe man could bake a better griddle cake than the buckwheat variety, but up to now he hasn't, which fact casts the shadow of a doubt on the possibility. Given the right kind of batter, a smoking hot griddle, a practiced hand on the job and the result is a work of art, the color of which is a kind of light mahogany with bird's eye maple effect. When these are taken with bricks of butter, dissolving like icebergs in a tropic sea, the thickest of maple syrup or sorghum poured copiously over the steaming stack—oh, beloved! Here is ecstasy that not even Omar with his "jug" and "thou" ever knew.

WORLD COURT COMMENT.

"New Difficulties."

New York Times: It would be idle to pretend that the reservations attached to the world court resolutions are satisfactory. They raise new difficulties. They portend delay. They are grudging where they should be generous. President Coolidge apparently intends to accept them as the best that can now be obtained from the Senate. He is like the lecturer who passed his hat around for contributions but, receiving none, was glad even to get his hat back from such an audience. It is stated at the White House that the President will not oppose reservations which are "practical." Those agreed to by the Senate are intensely practical. They were a form of political bribery to secure votes which otherwise could not be had. Moreover, two or three of them have the obviously practical intent of postponing our entry into the world court for a long time, cutting into its function so far as we are concerned, and leaving this country in the position of seeming to wish to dictate without daring to destroy. With this outcome no one who believes in the world court through and through can be content. In many ways it is extremely disappointing.

On What Terms?

New York World: With the world court resolution ready for final passage in the Senate, is the public clear as to the precise conditions on which we are giving our adherence? These conditions have been laid down in five reservations and two resolutions attached to declaration of consent. The reservations are aimed to secure the five objects which have been held in view by court adherents since the beginning of the present debate. Of the two resolutions, one is unimportant and innocuous. The other lays down a far-reaching principle of domestic policy, and involves a highly debatable issue. The Senate, and not the State Department, shall decide when and how we actually go into the court. One-third of the senators can block action. This is the price President Coolidge is made to pay for getting the world court through the Senate, and it is a stiff one.

America for the League.

Philadelphia Public Ledger: League and court have been the two pet devils of the isolationists. They did what they could to revive the league as a political issue. The tomtoms and devil-drums that sounded in 1919 have been beaten day after day in the Senate. The vote of Monday is the measure of their failure. As a political issue, the league was dead months ago. The "die-hards" have buried it even deeper. The fears, resentments, jealousies and racial hatreds of a few years ago have faded. These were the hopes of "bitter-enders." Enemies of the court believed the prejudices and animosities of 1919 still were powerful. They counted on these to offset and finally overwhelm the sentiment for adherence. They know better now. The closure roll call showed how gravely they were mistaken and how much they had overestimated American distrust and fear of the league and the Old World.

Dangerous Reservations.

Springfield Republican: Some votes were saved for the court by the offer of the substitute reservations, and, if this is true, good faith may now compel their formal acceptance. Yet bad faith is involved with many American voters who took seriously the court plank in the Republican national platform and supported Mr. Coolidge at the polls partly on the strength of it. The substitute reservations now offered by the majority coalition are not the reservations recommended by the President; in certain important particulars they deviate from them in a striking and even dangerous way—dangerous because all the other governments now adhering to the court statute must accept our reservations before America's adherence to the court can be completed.

Crippling Provisions.

Brooklyn Eagle: We ought to do something more than make a polite gesture in the direction of the court. We ought to make our participation in it genuinely effective, not merely a perfunctory adhesion bound up with a crippling proviso. The reservation setting up the Senate as the final arbiter of appeals to the court should be beaten. If it wins, the endorsement of the court will be of very doubtful value.

Adherence a Mockery.

Philadelphia Record: Although victory is in sight, it is apparently to be illusory. While the general assumption has been that passage of the resolution would mean effective participation in the great agency of peace, eleventh-hour changes made go far to nullify its purpose. The scheming of these open foes of the world court is not so dangerous as the timidity and compromising of its professed friends, who have loaded the resolution with provisions that threaten to make its passage a mockery.

"Quibblers."

New York Sun: These reservations mean very little to the American mind. They will never mean anything to the mind of Europe. That will be seen as soon as the United States moves to take advantage of any reservation in a way displeasing to Europe. We shall be assailed as quibblers, just as we are now assailed as "money lenders."

The Coming Fight.

Chicago Tribune: Although the reservations are intended to crawl into out of the court before getting into it and although they represent a surrender on the part of the proponents which the opposition accepts as a victory against the court, the situation remains that no one can indicate the usefulness of the court to the American people and all that has been done is to restrict its harmfulness. Our internationalists think and hope that the next steps will land the United States in the League of Nations. They intended that the court should be the back door to the league and the honest of them said so. That's probably the next fight, after more promotion.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Philippines Cost $20,000,000.

To the Editor of The Post: Sir—In one of the noon papers I have recently read the mistaken statement that, by the treaty of peace putting an end to the Spanish-American war, the United States paid Spain $20,000,000 for relinquishing her claim to Porto Rico, Guam and the Philippine Islands. Looking up the Treaty of Paris of December 10, 1898, I have found that our government did not pay Spain a single cent for giving up her claim to Porto Rico. Article III provides for the payment by the United States of $20,000,000 to the Spanish nation for surrendering its claims over the Philippine Islands alone.

For the sake of truth I ask you to publish this letter.

CHARLES L. WHITE.
 Washington, Jan. 22.

Stirring Up "Minorities."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: One reason why the United States should not be involved in any European court or league is because any legal or moral obligations incurred would involve the United States government with great sections of European-born residents of this country.

So long as European governments settle European questions among themselves there is no possibility of complications between the United States and its own people; but when the United States takes sides in any European controversy it stirs up trouble at home among its foreign-born populations. If it were in the League of Nations or the world court it would be compelled to take sides, either by protest against or acquiescence in what was done in Europe.

In this respect the United States differs from all other countries.

Washington, Jan. 27.

The Coming Struggle.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In the memorable debate over the reservations to the world court proposed by Senator Robinson, of Indiana, discussed the matter from a Republican point of view. Much had been said about the Republican platform of 1924 endorsing the permanent court of international peace. The Republican party also in its platform declared that:

"This government has definitely refused membership in the League of Nations and to assume any obligations under the covenant of the league. On this we stand."

The senator from Indiana stated what he and many other Republicans believe to be the logic of the situation as party men and women. He said:

"The question, therefore, Mr. President, is this, so far as I am concerned as a party man: Do we assume any obligations to the League of Nations if we adhere to the protocol of signature, as has been proposed in Senate resolution No. 5?"
 "My answer is emphatically yes, if we go in; if we stay out, no. If we go in—and I vote to go in—then it seems to me I am not true to my party's pledge, having conscientiously voted against the league. If I vote to stay out, then it seems to me I have done my full duty by the platform of the Republican party."

Two conclusions may be drawn from this statement of the senator from Indiana: First, the last Republican party platform was framed without due regard to the election of 1920 and the logic of the situation; second, the apparent contradiction resulting from this failure to give due regard to the platform splits the Republican party, on the matter of the world court, into two factions. No one can foresee the outcome.

Mothers of Sickly Children Read What Mrs. Baker of Boston Says

My boy was run down—just about skin and bones, and no appetite, writes Mrs. Baker, of Boston.

"I am writing you in the hopes that other Mothers will read this voluntary testimonial regarding McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets. My boy, Emanuel, was run down completely, just about skin and bones; also irritable and with no appetite.

"I noted the wonderful improvement in him while taking your tablets and purchased three more boxes. His appetite picked up, and he is now sturdy and strong. A cheerful youngster and a happy mother want to thank you.

"You may print this at any time or anywhere you wish.

"MRS. ALBERT E. BAKER, 33 Ridgewood St., Boston, Mass."

Nature's greatest health builder and strength giver is Cod Liver Oil—it's full of vitamins of the first class—everyone knows that.

But pity the poor children—how can they take this nasty, nauseating stuff that invariably upsets their small, delicate stomachs?

Most of them can't and now—thank goodness—none of them have to.

For now Cod Liver Oil comes in tasteless sugar coated tablets, that are as easy for the kids to take as candy and they surely do build up the youngsters in double quick time.

So mothers, if any of your loved ones is frail and peaked or isn't feeling right just ask Peoples Drug Stores or any druggist for a box of McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets—60 tablets—60 cents.

One sickly, thin child, aged 9, gained 12 pounds in seven months and now plays daily with other children.

Splendid for any run down, weak, skinny, nervous man or woman—thousands of boxes are sold daily—but be sure and ask for McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets—the original and genuine. Try them for 30 days and if you aren't delighted with the improvement your druggist is authorized to hand you back the money you paid for them.—Adv.

LIVING CELL MODEL TAKES UP ITS FOOD AND SHOWS GROWTH

Differs From Real Thing in Constantly Needing to Be "Wound Up."

POSSESSES PROPERTIES OF PLANT ORGANISM

Scientists Regard Work of Dr. MacDougal as Step to Solving Life.

New York, Jan. 27 (By A. P.).—A working model of a living cell, the unit of structure in all plant and animal life, has been produced, according to the Scientific American, Dr. D. T. MacDougal, director of the Carnegie Institution's laboratories for plant physiology at Tucson, Ariz., is credited with the artificial production.

The man-made cell, according to Dr. MacDougal, does many things a living cell does, taking up water and food material and growing and absorbing sodium and potassium selectively in a manner similar to the absorption by plants. It is the product of Dr. MacDougal's study of the phenomenon of life by experiments with chemical substances of the same nature as those occurring in living matter which were exposed to normal living conditions.

Not a Living Cell.

"It would be an exaggeration to say that Dr. MacDougal has created a living cell," said Orsen D. Munn, editor and publisher of the Scientific American. "He has, however, succeeded in producing a good substitute for experimental and study purposes. His cell does possess some of the properties of the living plant cells. It may be that we never will be able to produce one artificially by mixing chemicals together, but Dr. MacDougal has made a long step toward that very thing. His achievement brings us nearer to an answer to the question, 'What is life?'"

The chief difference between the artificial cell and the living cell as described in the article is that "in the former the intervention of man is necessary to throw the switch—that is, to upset the balance and start things going again—while the living cell is apparently provided with some unknown mechanism for doing this at the psychological moment."

Dr. Beverly L. Clarke, assistant to Dr. MacDougal, explained that unlike the real living cell, the artificial cell needs "winding up" or the substitution of new solutions for the spent ones. It will take up its food material and water for a short time, with accompanying increase in size, but this process ceases until new substances are provided. The period of absorption and growth is a short one, the artificial cell needing repeated "winding up."

Bankers Buy B. & O.'s $30,000,000 Bond Issue

New York, Jan. 27 (By A. P.).—Kuhn, Loeb & Co., Speyer & Co., and the National City Co. have purchased, subject to the approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission, $30,000,000 of Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Co. refunding and general mortgage 5 per cent bonds, series "D" due March 1, 2030.

The sale is to provide funds to anticipate payment of indebtedness of $11,900,000 bearing 6 per cent interest, $2,900,000 of which was incurred to the United States government, and $9,000,000 to the United States railroad administration. The bonds are being offered at 95½ and accrued interests, to yield 5.24 per cent.

Valentino Returns; Denies He'll Rewed

New York, Jan. 27 (By A. P.).—Rudolph Valentino, motion picture star, who recently was divorced by his wife, the former Winnifred Hudnut, returned from Europe today aboard the steamship Levant. He deplored the rumors which linked his name with that of Mae Murray, movie actress, as the principals in a possible matrimonial match. He asserted that it was mere coincidence which landed him and Mae Murray on the same train from southern France to Paris and later to Berlin.

Class Gives Program At Lutheran Church

Impersonations, character sketches and short stories were presented at an entertainment given last night in Keller Memorial Lutheran church by the Electra class under the direction of Mrs. N. N. Stone, teacher.

Miss Mabel Mullins, of Perth Amboy, N. J., was the performer, making her third appearance at the church in such presentations. Approximately 300 persons attended.

New Irish Political Party.

Dublin, Jan. 27 (By A. P.).—A new political party "the people's party," has been formed under the leadership of Prof. W. Magennis, who succeeded from the Free State ministerial party following the London boundary agreement. The new party's aim, as announced, will be to secure unity on Irish territory and the establishment of a central government for the whole of the country.

Conventions Aid City, Salesmen Are Told

Washington is benefiting through its conventions that bring the beauties of the National Capital to the attention of thousands of Americans annually, C. E. La Vigne, executive director of the Washington Convention Bureau, said last night in an address before the weekly meeting of the real estate salesmen of Douglass & Phillips, at 1516 K street northwest.

Mr. La Vigne also referred to the traditional courtesy of Washingtonians which, he said, has done much to endear this city to outsiders and make them wish to return. The cooperation of hotel owners and proprietors of halls and lecture rooms has been of great value, he declared.

Thomas L. Phillips, a member of the firm, made a brief address. W. P. Monson, sales manager of the company, presided and introduced the speakers.

Coming to the Local Playhouses

NATIONAL

The title of a popular song that was the vogue a few years ago was, "Always Leave Them Laughing When You Say Good-bye." That is what Louis John Bartels does at every performance in the title role of "The Show Off," which starts a week's engagement at the National theater next Monday night, February 1. If you enjoy a good laugh, either at or with the other fellow, you should not fail to see this delightful comedy of everyday American life before it leaves Washington. Mr. Bartels has as an able associate and foil for his comedy Helen Lowell, who is well known to theatergoers. In addition to these two clever artists the cast includes Frances Goodrich, Winifred Wellington, C. W. Goodrich, William Carey and several others.

BELASCO

"The Gorilla" (with Mr. Mulligan and Mr. Garrity) will come back to Washington Monday night, next with the original New York company, including Frank McCormack, Clifford Dempsey, Betty Weston, Robert Strange, Frederick Truesdell, Arthur Beaton and others. Ralph Spence wrote "The Gorilla" in three nights on a bet. New York has never seen a riotous comedy in which no character smiled, an intense drama that made the packed houses shake with laughter and deep with chills at the same time, and a comical parody of the staple mystery plays—all written and acted into one compact show and at the fall of the curtain on the opening of "The Gorilla" the audience remained five minutes to cheer.

New York seconded the Washington critical verdict on the play, and Boston and London were not long in expressing their favor in the play.

So Washington at the Shubert Belasco theater will have another chance to add its hearty, happy laughter to that of London, Chicago, Boston and New York.

KEITH'S

Odette Myrtil, the French revue star, violinist and chanteuse, is scheduled to top the bill at B. P. Keith's theater next week, beginning with the Sunday matinee at 3:15 p. m. Miss Myrtil will present an unusual and terrific act presented with the assistance of her rare charm and distinctive personality.

Roy Cummings will be helped through "One Afternoon" with Irene Shaw. Mr. Cummings will be followed by Jack Rose, offering his celebrated hat traction. He is assisted by Jimmy Steiger at the piano.

Oiga Mishka, dancer, will present her company, assisted by the Gypsy Art quintet.

The season's most notable engagement will follow, "Mercedes," the scientific psychological sensation. He will be assisted by the mystic, Mile. Stanton.

Maude Powers and Vernon Wallace will be seen in their own act, "Georgia," a sequel to their old act, "Georgia on Broadway."

Stewart and O'Brien, soft-shoe dancers, with Hurlis and Seamon's all new and all-colored "Lucky Sambo" makes its local bow. Here is a company of 60 artists, some of them former stars of the best colored revues and some with definite place in the forthcoming attraction. Here is the great line-up of black-and-tan players: Julia Moody, phonograph record star, in her inimitable blues specialty; Billy Higgins, furiously funny chocolate-faced comedian; Joe Byrd, another clever laugh-getter; Arthur Porter and James Watts, still two more comical colored chaps. Earnest R. Whitman is conceded to be the best straight man of his race; Cassidy & Hunter, Russian dancers, the Three Dixie Songbirds, feminine vocalists; Jim Vaughan and his Lucky Sambo Jazz Hounds—12 great instrumentalists and the Black Diamond Speed Chorus of 24 singers and steppers.

MUTUAL

For the first week in February, opening with a Sunday matinee, January 31, Manager Jack Garrison, of the Mutual theater, will present Joe Levitt's burlesque production, "Giggles."

Real burlesque in its happiest form of expression is promised with the advent of "Giggles."

Matinees are given every afternoon with added features being presented in addition to the regular night performances.

Laughing

MISS OZELMA SMITH.

"For Beauty, laugh much," says an old adage. Contrariwise, being laughed makes one ready to laugh. Either way, Miss Ozelma Smith, of Madras, Ga., can't help being glad of her satin textured skin, which she carefully protects with Black and White Peroxide (Vanishing Cream). She says, "An invisible film of this dainty, snowy cream prevents chapping, keeps my skin soft, smooth and lovely in all weather, and makes an ideal powder base."

Black and White Peroxide (Vanishing Cream) is one of the famous Black and White Beauty Creations, whose high quality, at the low 50c and 25c prices, creates a demand for more than 12 million packages a year.

Best results come from using Black and White Skin Soap along with the Black and White Beauty Creations.

PALACE

Raymond Griffith, the high-hat screen comedian, who made millions in "Paths to Paradise," "Forty Winks," "The Night Club," and other recent Paramount comedy successes, will open at Loew's Palace starting Sunday afternoon. Griffith appears as the star of "Hands Up," a Western comedy of civil war days in which he is said to have the most hilarious role of his career.

"Hands Up" is an original story for Mr. Griffith, that was written by Reginald Morris and directed by Clarence Badger, who directed the same comedian in "Paths to Paradise," recently seen at Loew's Palace. The star's supporting cast includes Marion Nixon and Virginia Lee Corbin as the two sweethearts of the hero, Mack Swain, the former Sennett star; Montague Love, George Billings and others.

In "Hands Up," Griffith assumes the role of a Confederate spy who, at the orders of Gen. Robert E. Lee, undertakes to divert to the Southern army a wagon train of gold from the Comstock Lode in the far West. His efforts to carry out this commission result in a series of love affairs, holdups and even Indian battles, but when he does capture the treasure, he is advised that the war is over and that he is a common highway robber.

A new Walter Hiers comedy, the Bathe news, Palace magazine and Tom Gannon's music will be added features.

TIVOLI

David Wark Griffith's production of "That Royle Girl" will be the chief feature of the bill announced for presentation at Crandall's Tivoli theater the first two days of next week, beginning Sunday afternoon at 3. The cast is led by Carol Dempster and W. C. Fields. The story concerns the exciting ramifications of a love melodrama enacted in Chicago's underworld. The program will be completed by added short reels.

On Tuesday and Wednesday of next week Milton Sills and Doris Kenyon will be the pictured costars of the Tivoli's bill in first National production of "The Un-guarded Hour." Lupino Lane will be the comic artist in "Maid in Morocco." A new Pathe Review will round out the entertainment.

Norma Shearer and Lew Cody will occupy the screen on Thursday and Friday in "His Secretary." The story concerns the affairs of a pair involved in a human, sparkling romance of business life. The added attraction will be a new comedy, "Sweet Marie," and the "Topics of the Day" also will be screened.

For Saturday only, the Tivoli announces the Warner brothers' all-star production of "Below the Belt," which will be supplemented by Glenn Tryon in "Cuckoo Love," a Lyman H. Howe "Hodge Podge," and the fifth installment of "The Scarlet Streak."

GAYETY

Ethiopian entertainment will be revealed at the Gayety theater next week, beginning Sunday afternoon, when Hurlis & Seamon's all new and all-colored "Lucky Sambo" makes its local bow. Here is a company of 60 artists, some of them former stars of the best colored revues and some with definite place in the forthcoming attraction. Here is the great line-up of black-and-tan players: Julia Moody, phonograph record star, in her inimitable blues specialty; Billy Higgins, furiously funny chocolate-faced comedian; Joe Byrd, another clever laugh-getter; Arthur Porter and James Watts, still two more comical colored chaps. Earnest R. Whitman is conceded to be the best straight man of his race; Cassidy & Hunter, Russian dancers, the Three Dixie Songbirds, feminine vocalists; Jim Vaughan and his Lucky Sambo Jazz Hounds—12 great instrumentalists and the Black Diamond Speed Chorus of 24 singers and steppers.

WARDMAN PARK

The Thomas Herbert Stock Co., playing in the houses the week in "Shooting Shadows," a mystery melodrama, are now in rehearsal for "Enter Madame" with which they will open next Monday evening at Wardman Park theater.

"Enter Madame," a comedy written by Gilda Varese in collaboration with Dolly Byrne, is the story of a temperamental opera singer who has thrown aside the love of a devoted husband and a son in order to further her artistic career but when the husband becomes involved with the wrong woman and her young son announces his engagement, she realizes her loss and sets about to right things.

Ruth Harrison has the leading role. Parker Fennelly, leading man with the Herbert players, will be seen as the husband.

BOSTON SYMPHONY

The Boston Symphony orchestra, under the direction of its Russian conductor, Serge Koussevitzky, will make its first Washington appearance of the season at Poli's theater next Tuesday afternoon, February 2, at 4:30 o'clock, in a program that will include selection from Weber, Debussy, Rimsky-Korsakov and Brahms. The latter composer's Symphony No. 1 in C minor, Opus 68, in four movements, will constitute the featured musical event of the afternoon, while Weber's Overture to "Euryanthe," Debussy's "Prelude à l'Après-Midi d'un Faun," with eclogue by S. Mallarme, and Rimsky-Korsakov's suite from the opera "Tsar Saltan" will be other outstanding features of the program. Seats for this and other concerts in Mrs. Wilson-Greene's artists' course are now on sale at Mrs. Wilson-Greene's Concert Bureau, at Droop's, 1300 G street northwest.

METROPOLITAN

"What Fools Men," adapted from Henry Kitchell Webster's novel, "Joseph Greer and His Daughter," will be the major attraction at Crandall's Metropolitan theater next week, beginning Sunday afternoon at 3. The pivotal roles in this First National production are played by Lewis Stone, Shirley Mason, Barbara Bedford, Ethel Grey Terry, Hugh Allan, John Patrick, David Torrence, Joyce Comp-ton and Tom Wilson.

The supplementary offerings will include a new two-reel comedy, an issue of the Metropolitan World Survey, added short reels and a delightful musical program by the Metropolitan Symphony, Daniel Breeskin, conductor.

"What Fools Men" relates the story of an inventor who possessed a peculiar penchant for misjudging human nature; every one he considered worth while proved to be quite the opposite and those he deemed worthy of distrust eventually salvaged him. Lewis Stone is cast in the role of Greer, the inventor, and Shirley Mason as his willful daughter. Barbara Bedford is the secretary, who also plays a part in redeeming Greer from himself, and Tom Wilson is seen as "Hand-dsome," a negro servant who supplies most of the comedy in the action. The production was by George Archambault.

The Metropolitan Symphony will be heard in a concert overture and interpretative orchestral settings.

AMBASSADOR

Lewis S. Stone and Shirley Mason will be seen in the stellar roles of First National's production of "What Fools Men" at Crandall's Ambassador theater the first three days of next week, beginning Sunday at 3. Adapted from Henry Kitchell Webster's novel, this drama relates the experiences of a man with a colossal capacity for misjudging people and motives. The auxiliary offerings will embrace a new comedy, "Be Careful, Dearie," added short reels and pipe organ accompaniment.

On Wednesday and Thursday of next week the Ambassador will present "The Golden Cocoon," a new Warner Brothers' production in which the pivotal roles are played by Helene Chadwick, Huntley Gordon, Frank Campeau, Richard Tucker, Margaret Seddon and Little Violet Kane.

Carol Dempster and W. C. Fields will occupy the Ambassador screen as costars on Friday only of next week's bill, beginning Sunday afternoon at 3. "That Royle Girl," a story of love and thrills in the underworld of Chicago. The comedy note will be struck by Paul Terry in a new Aesop Fable.

For Saturday, Jackie Coogan is scheduled in "Old Clothes." The subsidiary attractions will include Earle Foxe in "The Sky Jumper," a Booth Tarkington "Van Bibber" story; a new Grandland Rice "Spotlight" and the fourth installment of "The Green Archer."

RIALTO

"Lorraine of the Lions," starring Norman Kerry and with Patsy Ruth Miller playing the leading feminine role, comes to the Rialto Sunday as feature picture.

The story of the play concerns a sort of feminine Tarzan who is shipwrecked on a deserted island at the age of 7. She grows up with the animals and is rescued after twelve years, taking a huge gorilla back to civilization with her. The animal shows a strange tinge of jealousy and refuses to allow the girl to have human companions.

Thrills are added when the wild beast becomes insanely jealous of the girl's suitors, attacking the favored one during a social affair. The girl saves him from her hypnotic power, but she in turn is seized by the gorilla and is about to be dropped off the foot of the building when she summons her power again and forces the beast to release her. The denouement to the picture is said to be thrilling to the extreme.

CENTRAL

"The Scarlet West," a thrilling drama of the old rugged country of the pioneers, will be shown as feature attraction at Crandall's Central theater the first two days of next week, beginning Sunday afternoon at 3. The supplementary feature will be a new Aesop Fable and the bill will be completed by added short reels and pipe organ accompaniment.

"The Ancient Highway," filmed from the story of the same name by James Oliver Curwood, will be shown on Tuesday and Wednesday of next week with Jack Holt, Billie Dove, Montague Love and others in the cast. The comedy will be "On the Go" and an added offering will be a new release of the Pathe Review.

Rudolph Valentino and Nita Naldi will be the stars on Thursday and Friday in the picturization of the stage success "Cobra." The comedy will be Hal Roach's "Laughing Ladies."

On Saturday of next week, the Central will offer "The Golden Cocoon," a new Warner Brothers production in which the costar roles are played by Helene Chadwick and Huntley Gordon. The auxiliary feature will be supplied by Lige Conley in a new two-reel comedy, "On Edge."

Each daily bill will be augmented by abbreviated camera subjects and tuneful pipe organ accompaniment and solo interludes.

WILHELM BACHAUS TODAY.

The seventh offering of the Ten Star series today at the National theater marks the return to this country after an absence of eight years of the eminent pianist, Wilhelm Bachaus. Mr. Bachaus' last tour of this country was an event of great musical importance and the impression he made is well remembered. The program to be given today includes Brahms, Beethoven, Chopin and Liszt.

POLI'S

"The Big Parade" is now in its second week at Poli's. This simple face of the romance between a doughboy, John (Hert) and a little French peasant maid (Renee Adoree) forms one of the most appealing stories of the screen.

Retreating entirely from the usual type of screen story, Laurence Stallings has got away from the hackneyed plots and impossible situations usually portrayed for screen audiences and has placed before them a romance true and compelling.

The cast includes Hobart Bosworth as the father and Claire McDowell as the mother of the hero, and Claire Adams as the opposing feminine interest.

Two types of novelty and comedy interest are the two buddies of distinct contrast as played by Tom O'Brien and Karl Dane, actors new to the screen.

COLUMBIA

A vivid and ultra-modern story of the jazz-age, "Dance Madness," will be revealed by Metro-Goldwyn at Loew's Columbia for the week beginning next Sunday afternoon, with Claire Windsor and Conrad Nagel in the featured roles, supported by Hedda Hopper, Mario Carillo and other players. The production was directed by Robert Z. Leonard from the story by S. Jay Kaufman, famous New York newspaper columnist and playwright.

"Dance Madness" is rich with the atmosphere of modern and luxurious continental night-life and reveals the manner in which beautiful but neglected wife wins back her philandering husband by posing as the very charmer who has caught his fancy.

Mr. Nagel has the part of a gay young dog who wins the heart of a dancer only to tire of her after a year and become fascinated with a fascinating Russian. With the help of the latter's husband, the wife invents a scheme that not only completely cures her husband, but proves to him that his own life is really desirable.

The featured attraction at the Columbia next week will be supplemented by the latest Al St. John comedy, "Live Cowards," the International Newsreel, overture and other offerings.

STRAND

A bill of vaudeville and picture attractions, headed by the Welder sisters, is the offering of the Strand theater for next week, beginning Sunday. The Welder sisters offer a music-comedy of songs and dances. In the cast are Murray Lubit, Billie Creedon, Bob Lewis and Arthur Pinnas.

Bert Walton, the international cynic, will also add some original ideas to the bill in his skit entitled "You'll Do the Same Thing to Some One Else." Other numbers include Frank Dixon and company, in a comedy turn, "By Appointment," by William Anthony McGuire; Walsh, Daley and Walsh, in "Harmony Funsters," and Reck and Reck, in equilibriumistic feats.

"Bright Lights," a romance of Broadway and Main street, will be the feature photoplay attraction, with Charles Ray and Pauline Stark in the leading roles.

Short film features and orchestral numbers, under the direction of Arthur J. Manvell, will round out a perfectly delightful bill of entertainment.

EARLE

Next week's chief vaudeville feature at the Earle theater will be Norman Kerry's "Demi-Tasse," lyrics by Arthur Swannstrom and music by Carey Morgan, with Helen Fables, Rita Howard and Caroline Nolte, supported by eight beautiful girls. The offering is in song, dances of wide variety and art studies of marked pictorial beauty. This is one of the most pretentious musical revue acts ever presented at the Earle, and will be surrounded by a supporting bill of exceptional merit.

Other vaudeville inclusions will embrace the Plaza brothers, athletes from Spain; Sampson and Douglas, in "Wit and Harmony," and Burke, Walsh and Nana, in "They're Peculiar," comic sketch.

The usual house features will include the overture by the Earle theatre orchestra, under the direction of Floyd Wheeler, Alexander Arons' pipe organ recital, and the customary short-reel film features.

The photoplay feature will be "The Splendid Crime," a new Paramount release, in which the stellar role is played by Bebe Daniels.

Performances begin Sunday at 3, daily 1 to 11 p. m.

MOLLIE

By EUSTACE HALE BALL

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

Mollie, an attractive young girl, employed by a firm of brokers in the big city, succeeds in selling to Mortimer Weldon, the millionaire, a block of stock in a mining corporation, following an evening in a night club, which Mollie visits much against her will. In the company of Corliss, her employer, who believed that Mollie's beauty and charm would surely influence Weldon, whose weakness for pretty young women was common gossip. In the party are Phil Blythe, a weak-kneed fellow, and two girls who are employed in the office, and Sterling Sanford, a mining engineer, who is employed by the brokers as an expert. As a reward for obtaining Weldon's order for the stock, Mollie, who is now Corliss' private secretary, receives a commission of a thousand dollars. On the following Friday after a week of gossip among the girls in the office relating the night club affair, Weldon surprises them when, after a brief conference with Corliss, he leaves, accompanied by Mollie. At first in a fashionable hotel, Weldon, after becoming aware that Mollie is different from other girls, tells her that Sanford, the engineer, is the only one in the firm he would trust, and declares that he has the whole crowd investigated, even Mollie herself. Weldon is pleased, however, that Mollie is loyal to her employer. Upon her return home, she is confronted by Sterling Sanford, who is waiting for her. He takes her to dinner in a Bohemian restaurant, and tells her of his distant cousin Corliss and Blythe, who agree to reveal to him the confidences of the firm. On their way out, they are stopped by a man, who they think is a burglar, and who is really a detective. From another table one of the hilarious roasts is being made, and Corliss, about the waist and wearing a hat, is in the crowd. Sanford pulls Mollie from her seat, and she is introduced to the detective, who is really a friend of Corliss. They proceed to the theater, and the next day Corliss, who is a very successful man, lunch with him at the home of the Carvers, another stock prospect.

CHAPTER XI.

The Halt, Lame and Blind.

It was a bitter situation. Mollie Mayhew's first instinct was to scream out a denunciation of the pettiness, the cruelty which had brought forth these words. And yet, stirring Mollie's heart was a great desire to make a success of her life. She could have derided the jealous, old Miss Fitzway, with truth in every syllable. She could have shamed Gladys and Anna before the office with a dozen words of description of their own condition the night before.

But in that office were other workers who had their own weaknesses, their own virtues, their own little battles which looked so, so big to them. And who was she to fly into a tirade at a girl who, while it would make her look even more ridiculous in the end.

All this flashed through her mind with the speed of the thunderbolt. With the supreme effort of her soul she forced her lips into a smile, and she held back the tears that sought to rush in a torrent.

"Miss Fitzway," she said quietly. "I've found that all of us—even you—might be misguided, when you are doing the right thing. . . . Can't you just think a minute, and see if you hurt some other girl, even when you think she doesn't hear you. It means an awful lot more to the other girl than it does to you."

Mollie walked into the private office with her head high, and although Corliss had told her it was unnecessary, she had a headache, she told him truly; and she would run downstairs for a minute to the drug store to get something for it. As she took her purse from her desk, Phil Blythe gave her a most unexpected look of severity.

"Young lady, I saw that you didn't take any drinks last night. Now, why do you need a headache tablet? Take my advice and be aware of any kind of medicine. It has killed more people than rum!" And then he grinned. Mollie slipped out of the place; noticed that the girls did not look at her so belligerently, and breathed a thank offering that she had not said the words which had sprung to her lips, sooner.

Downstairs she did both things she had said. She did cure her headache by getting something for it. The something was a call from a booth which reached Sterling Sanford. Just as he was reaching the club, his delight at hearing her voice was better than medicine to her wounded heart.

Here was one person, at least, who had a kindly and unselfish freedom. Guardedly, because telephones as well as walls have many unknown "ears," she asked him about the luncheon with Old Pop Carver and his wife.

When she expressed her hatred of this new effort, Sterling Sanford laughed.

"Don't worry about them, dear girl. Two more selfish people never lived. You know in your heart that this is good, and so do I. Try to put the deal over, for as soon as I know certain things are safe, I'll play a new mood with our friends. I'll force them to start operations. That will help us all. And by the way, I know where I can secure 1,000 shares for 30 cents apiece. Do you want me to buy—that's only $300. Already it is going from virtually nothing, for it has leaked out in the market that some one is buying. How about it?"

Mollie gasped. Never in her wildest girlish dreams had she imagined herself ever able to speculate in the stock market. A pleasant, quiet living was all that she had sought, with the future one of decent comfort and self-respect.

"Those shares are marked $10 apiece!" she exclaimed, quickly. "That's $10,000 for $300 if I act"

"Indeed yes, but," said he hesitated. "Don't waste too much of your sweetness on old Carver. I've heard that he is none too pleasant." Mollie caught the disturbing sea of change; one minute something to rejoice over and the next one black with sinister worry. She was beginning to understand more than ever why the city men and women she had seen visiting little Kingsville for short holidays were such worried looks, ever lacking in the repose of the small town.

She bade him farewell and hurried out of the drug store, and up to the office of the Mammoth Mining Properties, Inc.

It went against the grain, but she actually smiled into the features of disagreeable Miss Fitzway.

She knew that the look would be regarded as one of her "cunning ways." But why worry?

"If I am to be called crafty, and scheming, and clever, why not get as much fun out of it as I can by being that way—it will help me climb!" she asked herself. It has been a question which changed many a simple kindly soul into the canny ways of the world. How many of us have been hardened—not by our own greedy desires—but by the misunderstanding of those who deemed us hard and suspicious?

"Well, if you will take this letter to the good mining expert, Miss Mollie, I'll dash out for a conference and sign it when I come back. We'll go up to the old Carver House at noon, in my car."

As soon as the company raises $100,000 surplus we will do as you kindly suggest and order the necessary machinery. Not before then. Your hopes are a bit too golden for us to risk our present funds. Now, dear fellow, you can do me a great favor. Keep your own eyes to yourself, except as you have expressed them in your paid report. I do not want a boom in this stock. That would be unfair to the widows and orphans who might invest—and find that the prices had risen above their real value. I am a great stickler for protecting the poor and dependent against unscrupulous salesmen. I think you would understand this from my past reputation."

Benjamin Corliss was watching Mollie's face as he finished dictating. "You understand why I write this way, do you not?" he asked. Mollie shook her head with innocent stupidity.

"I don't understand much about such things. I wish you could explain them to me a bit better," was her retort.

"There's no need of getting a headache studying it too deeply," said Corliss and smiled with satisfaction. "If it gets around that this is a sure hit, it will spoil our present plans. We are slowly purchasing stock at today's value. Then, it cannot be taken from our hands. Mr. Sanford is impetuous and may talk too much. Meanwhile, Miss Mollie, you can be just as enthusiastic as you wish to old Mr. and Mrs. Carver . . . for we are selling to them at a really good profit. I'll make you a promise, there will be a five hundred dollar commission for you if you help them to make up their minds to take $20,000 by this contract which you will type before noon."

"But, it seems so queer," said Mollie's face was puckered up in assumed stupidity, as she gave him the dig. "Why don't you want Mr. Sanford to sell stock for you, if you are willing to give your share of the commission to me? I'm all in a cloud about it."

"You just stay in that cloud," Corliss told her. "The mountain's tops are surrounded by clouds, and they are the highest places we have. Some day, and he looked at her most earnestly. "I may put you on a high pinnacle. If we have luck. Meanwhile, this is in confidence. I won't cultivate this Sanford and his much. He's had a pretty rough training in the West. Last night he asked the owner of the hotel, 'Let's get this over with. I don't like young men, anyway.' It was evident that he was tremendously out of humor. His wine, peering through a jeweled lorgnette, had discerned the handsome Benjamin Corliss, now advancing upon them with a courtly bow.

"Oh, you dear boy," the old lady chortled fatuously. "It's so kind of you to come. And did you bring your sister? The old man glared disapprovingly at Corliss, and then turned his thick gold rimmed glasses upon Mollie, standing close by. His expression changed utterly, and a silly, toothless smirk came across his wrinkled features. Corliss drew Mollie Mayhew forward. She bowed, embarrassed.

"This is Miss Mollie Mayhew, who is my associate in the business," he said. "She was so anxious to meet you both."

MODISH MITZI

When Fashions Are a Trifling Matter

By Jay V. Jay

Adelaide ostentatiously offers to shake hands. It isn't that Adelaide is formal—it's just that she wants to show the bouquet of violets which she is wearing in quite the newest position—on her cuff.

Mitzi has something new in the way of handshakes to show herself. It is a pair of gloves, one of which has a tiny mirror in its cuff. So convenient for that extra and necessary dab of powder!

Did you like Adelaide's hat? Mitzi liked it so much that she decided to buy one like it. Not that she will. She is hesitating now between these two—both of them of straw combined with silk, to wear in the South.

This, surely this was meant for Mitzi. If there is a pair of eyes that can show to better advantage above this fan of green ostrich than Mitzi's, we don't know it. The feather vanity bag is made to match.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

THE SONG OF ENOUGH.

I'm getting along, with a bit of a song

And a bit of a smile for my neighbor.

I've managed to grin, with the little I win

Day by day as the bit from my labor.

Time was in the past I stood often aghast

As the storms of despair swept around me.

But my ship, although small, bravely weathered them all

And nothing I've dreaded has drowned me.

I've not had the luck which some others have struck.

I've never been famous nor wealthy.

But I've always had good when I wanted to eat

And I thank the good Lord I've been healthy.

Some things I have missed on the millionaire's list.

But the friends I have made have been true ones;

I have always had suits, shirts and neckties and boots

Though I couldn't afford many new ones.

I'm getting along, just as one of the through

Day by day I have worked for my money.

But in spite of the care and the burden I bear

I've had some of life's nectar and honey.

My house isn't large, but love has it in charge

And in peace and contentment I dwell there.

And all men I defy, to be happier than I

When a friend puts his hand on the bell there.

I'm getting along with a bit of a song

For I've learned what I knew not at twenty.

That enough for each day, with a bit put away

For the cares of my old age is plenty.

I have eaten and slept, and at times I have wept.

I've done all that the Lord lets a man do;

I've made friends on the way, and I venture to say

That is all that the richest man can do.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

Old-Time Dudes and Dandies.

ABOUT the year 1760, people in London began to notice a group of young men who were trying to set new fashions in England. Many of them had traveled in Italy, and they had decided to wear Italian styles in their home country.

These rich young fellows formed the "Macaroni club." I suppose they ate large helpings of macaroni at the club, but the chief point about the name was that it pointed toward Italy, the home of macaroni.

Could you guess that this was a man?

Members of the club came to be called "Macaronis," and people admired them or laughed at them—as they chose. Silk breeches were worn by the Macaronis, and they also had coats trimmed with lace or braid. They usually carried two watches apiece, and took pains that other persons should know the fact. On their fingers they wore thick, heavy rings.

Perhaps the main point about the Macaronis was the way they dressed their hair. It was held up in a kind of pompadour, with curls at the sides. Behind, the hair was gathered and tied in a thick knot.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS.

WINDOWS AND COLD.

WHY are these floors so cold, was the question. "Because there are six windows," was the answer.

The building was an exceptional well built skyscraper. An exceptional amount of window space is another characteristic of this very building. In some places the law requires that the square feet of window space shall bear a relation to the square feet of floor space.

This law is based on health considerations. It is recognized that a certain amount of sunlight is necessary for the well being of occupants. These laws specify a minimum proportion of window space. This building goes far beyond the requirements of any of these laws. But in this, as in everything else, we must pay for what we get. If we want window area we must pay for it.

And one of the ways in which we pay for it is in increased cost of heating in winter. An increased tendency to cold floors is another. The snugest windows leak air. It is impossible to build a window so that no air will leak around the frame. This air seeks the floor. Furthermore, except when the window glass is double and there is an air space between the windows, the air of the room. The air, after being chilled, falls to the floor and flows across it.

There are three ways to overcome this. One is to double glaze the windows. Another is to place radiators below the windows so that the cold air will be warmed when it en route to the floor. The third is to employ electric fans to drive the cold air away from the floor and to empty the ceiling zone of its layer of superheated air.

The use of fans for the purpose of cooling the air in hot weather looks so large in sunlight is necessary for the well being of occupants. These laws specify a minimum proportion of window space. This building goes far beyond the requirements of any of these laws. But in this, as in everything else, we must pay for what we get. If we want window area we must pay for it.

THE HOUSEKEEPER

By NANCY CAREY.

I AM going to take the liberty, Mrs. Howard, of answering your inquiry about custards through the paper rather than with a personal letter for I feel sure that there are others who find custard making difficult. Eggs and milk in combination are inclined to be treacherous, and require extreme care in baking. Custards must be baked very slowly and the dish containing the custard must be placed in another and larger dish containing water which is never allowed to boil. When the custard shows a tendency to puff insert a silver knife in the center and if the knife comes out clear your custard is done. Great danger lies in over-baking, which has, I think, from your description, been the difficulty, Mrs. Howard. If baked too long the custard will separate and turn watery.

There are numerous forms of custard, but the baked is the true form and is a great delicacy indeed, especially when offered to invalids or convalescents. It may be chilled and served with caramel sauce and become not only a wholesome but a dainty dessert, and it is also considered a valuable part of the diet of children. So, if we are going to make custard let us take great care with the baking process, for there lies the secret. There are, among the kinds of custard a little less common, caramel, ginger, French, coffee, pineapple, lemon, wine, orange and jelly. I am going to give you only the simple variety, known as "baked custard," but if you will write us, inclosing a stamped envelope, we will send you a recipe for any of the others. If you still have ham, as I expect many of you have, may I suggest that you serve it again in casserole; the receipt was published January 14th, and consisted, if you remember, of a bit of minced ham, with rings of green pepper, eggs and grated cheese.

Was it the ghost of LOVE —or HATE?

A mysterious tale of love balked and love triumphant

A college romance strangely stifled by unaccountable neglect—locked in loveless marriage by a woman's mad impulse. Robbed of happiness, his wife a helpless invalid, a persistent, terrifying ghost adds to his load of misery.

Then in a moment comes the crisis. This web, more tangled than the most daring fiction writer could hope to construct, is unraveled.

But read for yourself "The Mystery Behind Her Eyes"—a true tale from real life that holds you spellbound, that fascinates and thrills you, that makes you breathe hard, that stirs your deepest emotions.

This is only one of a score of true feature stories written in the blood-red ink of human experience that make the February number of "True Romances" a veritable mine of sobering warnings, of knowledge gained in the hard school of life. Get your copy of February "True Romances" today—at all newsstands.

Sparks from the flint of life

Because truth is never fashionable and often unpleasant, it is smothered and covered up. For truths that are as old as the human race, every generation pays the price in tears and sorrow, in regret and humiliation.

If knowledge is strength, truth is its backbone. Facts are the brick and mortar of which the temple of truth and wisdom is built.

When you conceal facts you put truth in chains and cover up knowledge that might save lives from wreck and ruin.

"True Romances" draws back the veil that shrouds the inner lives of men and women, still living. Its true tales clothe the facts of life in flesh and blood men and women, here and now. They demonstrate the truth of old proverbs that are the distilled wisdom of the ages.

Gripping, startling, glowing and gloomy, inspiring, exciting and sobering, the true and straight told tales that appear in "True Romances" are sparks from the flint of life.

Told without reserve, without any effort to condone or excuse, to justify or condemn, these true life stories in "True Romances" relate in simple, straightforward language what happened and why. They mark the rocks on which lives have been wrecked. They chart the course to sorrow and humiliation, to havens of love and happiness.

These intimate pictures and histories of closed chapters in the lives of men and women in all walks of life are revealing and enlightening. Sermons from life, guide posts for the heedless and unwary, for the innocent and inexperienced—they are woven from the facts and truths of lives of people whose happiness and social position might be jeopardized were the identity of these unnamed authors revealed.

Read the February issue of "True Romances" for entertainment and that you may know life better.

To be Dated February 1, 1926

Due February 1, 1941

Interest payable February and August 1. Coupon Bonds in $1,000, $500 and $100 denominations, the principal of which may be registered. Redeemable as a whole or in part on any interest date on 30 days' notice at 105 and accrued interest to and including February 1, 1929; and thereafter at 1% less for each three years until maturity.

The Corporation will assume the 2% Normal Federal Income Tax, and it agrees to refund, upon application within sixty days after payment, any personal property or intangible taxes which may be assessed against the holder of these bonds by any state or political subdivision thereof, or by the District of Columbia, not exceeding 6 mills per annum.

The Pennsylvania Company for Insurance on Lives and Granting Annuities, Philadelphia, Trustee.

Application will be made to have these bonds declared legal investments for trust funds in the District of Columbia.

Mr. James D. Hobbs, Vice-President of the Corporation, has summarized his accompanying letter to us as follows:

LOCATION & CHARACTER The Wardman Park Hotel is probably one of the most widely known apartment hotels in the United States. The site of the property at Connecticut Avenue, Woodley Road and Calvert Street, is within a short distance of the center of Washington. Because of its location and its unique facilities, available in no other apartment hotel in or near the city, it has gained the permanent patronage of many persons prominent in the diplomatic and official life of the Capital and a wide transient patronage from all sections of the United States.CONSISTENT OCCUPANCY Eighty per cent. of the rooms are in housekeeping apartments under yearly lease. Since the opening of the hotel in 1919, no apartment has remained unoccupied nor has the number available ever met the demand.VALUATION The following appraisals have been recently made by recognized real estate authorities:

	Land	Buildings & Equipment	Total
MR. J. WILLISON SMITH, PHILADELPHIA	$1,150,000	$3,700,000	$4,850,000
MESSRS. WEAVER BROS., WASHINGTON	1,749,519	3,471,293	5,220,812
MR. HAROLD E. DOYLE, WASHINGTON	1,749,549	3,750,000	5,499,549

The closed first mortgage of $2,500,000 amounts to 51 1/2% of the lowest of these appraisals. By the operation of the Sinking Fund the mortgage will have been reduced, by maturity, to at least $1,412,500, or to less than the average of appraisals of the land value alone.

SINKING FUND The mortgage will provide for a sinking fund which will retire $75,000 par value of these bonds annually, at or below the then existing redemption price. Bonds so acquired are to be cancelled.MANAGEMENT The continuation of the present management, which has been responsible for the success of the hotel, is assured to the bondholders, by the terms of a supplemental agreement.

Application will be made to list these bonds on the Washington Stock Exchange.

We offer the above bonds when, as and if issued and received by us and subject to approval of Counsel.

Price 99 1/2 and Interest to Yield about 5.55%

It is expected that the Corporation will call for redemption at 105 and interest on March 1, 1926, its outstanding First Mortgage 6% Bonds due September, 1937.

All matters pertaining to the legality of this issue will be approved by Messrs. Dickson, Beiler & McCouch of Philadelphia for the Bankers, and by Judge Daniel Thew Wright for the Corporation. Appraisals of the property have been made by Mr. J. Willison Smith of Philadelphia, Messrs. Weaver Bros. of Washington and Mr. Harold E. Doyle of Washington. Dated January 1, 1926.

Due April 1st, 1945.

Coupon Bonds in denominations of $1000 and $500 registerable as to principal. Interest payable April and October 1st in Cleveland and New York, without deduction of the Normal Federal Income Tax not in excess of 2%, - Callable on any interest date in whole or in part at 105 and accrued interest to and including April 1st, 1935; thereafter at par plus a premium of 1 1/2% for each year of unexpired maturity.

Issuance and sale of these bonds are subject to approval by Interstate-Commerce Commission

THE GUARDIAN TRUST COMPANY, CLEVELAND, OHIO, TRUSTEE

The following information has been summarized from reports of the Company, and a letter addressed to us by Mr. H. B. Stewart, President of The Akron, Canton & Youngstown Railway Co.

SECURITY: The Akron, Canton & Youngstown Railway Company is a Class 1 Standard gauge steam railroad, serving the intensely developed industrial area of Akron, Ohio. These bonds, together with $750,000 Series A 6s, are secured, in the opinion of counsel, by a direct mortgage on the entire physical property of the Company. This property is subject to $1,500,000 of First Mortgage 6s of 1930 for the refunding of which a portion of this authorized issue of bonds is reserved, and eight miles of right of way acquired from the Northern Ohio Ry. Co. is subject to its mortgage. Investment in road and equipment is carried at $4,742,774.EARNINGS: Based on Reports to the Interstate Commerce Commission the Company's operating revenues, and net income have been as follows:

	1925	1924	1923	1922
Operating Revenues	$1,782,657.00	$1,523,632.00	$1,380,495.00	$1,200,096.00
Operating Expenses	875,705.00	771,505.79	663,669.59	554,415.34
Net Operating Revenue	$ 906,952.00	$ 752,126.21	$ 716,825.41	$ 645,680.66
Net Income Available for Interest	$ 583,797.00	$ 556,064.91	$ 572,063.25	$ 529,667.83
Total Fixed Charges (including this issue)	$ 179,000.00

These net earnings for the year 1925 are equivalent to over 3 1/4 times interest requirements on entire funded debt, including this issue. After deducting interest on the First Mortgage Bonds, the remaining net is equivalent to over five and one-half times interest on the General and Refunding Mortgage Bonds. These earnings naturally do not reflect any benefits from expenditures to be made as a result of the present financing.

Except in the first two years following its construction, this Road has never failed to earn a substantial margin over and above all fixed charges. In the ten years, 1916 to 1925, which period includes some of the worst years in Railroad history, net earnings of this Company available for interest have averaged over $373,246, or more than twice total fixed charges including interest on all bonds now to be issued.

PURPOSE: The proceeds of this financing will be used to reimburse the Company's treasury for capital expenditures heretofore made, and for further Additions and Betterments to property.

Bonds of the above issue are offered when, as and if issued and received by us, subject to the approval of counsel, and by the Interstate Commerce Commission. All legal details pertaining to this issue will be under the direction of Messrs. Squire, Saunders and Dempsey. The mortgage has been approved for the Bankers by Messrs. Rapet, Gray, Boyden and Perkins and by Messrs. Townsend, Elliott and Munson.

Twenty-Year 7 1/2% Mortgage Gold Bonds

(With Stock Purchase Warrants)

To be dated January 1, 1926

To mature January 1, 1946

To be presently authorized and issued $3,000,000

Coupon Bonds in denominations of $1,000 and $500, registerable as to principal. Interest payable January 1 and July 1 at the Corn Exchange Bank, New York, in United States gold coin of the standard of weight and fineness existing January 1, 1926, without deduction for German taxes of any nature, present or future. Callable at the option of the Company in whole or in part at 105 and accrued interest to and including January 1, 1931, upon sixty days' notice at 105.

THE CORN EXCHANGE BANK, NEW YORK, American Trustee.
DEUTSCHE WARENTRUHAND AKTIENGESellschaft, German Trustee.

As a Sinking Fund the Company will agree on or before January 1 in each year to and including January 1, 1931, to surrender for cancellation Bonds aggregating 5% of the principal amount of this issue provided such Bonds can be purchased at or below 102 1/2 and accrued interest. The Company agrees on or before January 1 of each year thereafter to surrender for cancellation or to redeem at 105 Bonds aggregating the same amount.

Mr. Alfred Leonhard Tietz, a Managing Director of Leonhard Tietz Aktiengesellschaft, has summarized in part his letter as follows:

BUSINESS AND ASSETS

"The principal activity of the Company is the operation of a chain of modern department stores. Leonhard Tietz was a pioneer in the department store business in Germany. The business, founded in 1879, has become one of the largest retail organizations in Europe with a chain of nineteen up-to-date department stores, in nearly every case the largest in their respective cities.

The balance sheet of the Company, as of July 31, 1925, adjusted to give effect to the present financing, as certified by Messrs. Lybrand, Ross Bros. & Montgomery, shows total net assets applicable to these Bonds, after deduction of all other liabilities, of $10,363,704.51. Real estate, which consists of up-to-date buildings on valuable central sites, owned by the Company and wholly owned subsidiaries, is carried on their respective balance sheets at $6,018,478.30. This figure represents an extremely low valuation, as is evident from the appraisals of Mr. Georg Falck dated August 18, 1924 and October 14, 1925, which value the properties at $16,181,512.

The actual value of the net assets applicable to these Bonds, including real estate at the appraised valuation, after deduction of all other liabilities, is thus about $20,526,738 or over $6,842 per $1,000 bond.

PROFITS

Earnings available for interest on these Bonds, after all taxes, except income taxes, and after ordinary depreciation charges, for the year 1924 were $1,521,818.16 or 6.75 times the amount required for interest on this issue; and for the first seven months of the year 1925 were over $875,000, in each case after allowance for the saving of interest which would have been effected by the proceeds of this financing, as certified by Messrs. Lybrand, Ross Bros. & Montgomery.

SECURITY

These Bonds will be a direct obligation of the Company.

They will be secured in the opinion of counsel by direct mortgage lien on all the fixed properties of the Company and its wholly owned subsidiaries (except certain property in the City of Berlin, negotiations for the sale of which, at a price substantially in excess of both the book and appraised values, are now in progress), subordinate to the lien of revalued mortgages estimated not to exceed $1,471,874.35. The Company will agree to extend the lien of this mortgage to cover all fixed properties hereafter acquired, subject to existing liens and to purchase money and construction mortgages.

The business being mainly commercial and not industrial, only a minor part of the Company's properties are subject to secured charges under the "Dawes Plan," which are estimated not to exceed $1,600 per share. In order to equalize the repayments burden, however, certain additional unsecured payments are required, which are estimated at a maximum of $75,000 per year.

STOCK PURCHASE WARRANTS

The Bonds will be accompanied by warrants entitling the holder at any time on or before January 1, 1931 to purchase shares of the Common Stock at $26 per share (par value 100 Reichsmarks per share). The net earnings, adjusted as above, on the Common Stock, after deduction of prior charges, for the fiscal year ended December 31, 1924, as certified by Messrs. Lybrand, Ross Bros. & Montgomery, were equivalent on the 250,000 shares now outstanding to $3.85 per share before the appropriation of $11,900 to employees' relief fund. For the first seven months of 1925 such profits were over $2.26 per share. The current market price is approximately $17. The book value of the Stock as indicated by the adjusted balance sheet as of July 31, 1925, was approximately $29.23 per share, which would be increased to $69.88 per share if real estate were carried at the appraised value. A cash dividend of 6 per cent ($1.42) was declared for the fiscal year ended December 31, 1924."

Price 97 and Accrued Interest to Yield about 7.80%

This offering is made in all respects, when, as and if issued and accepted by us and subject to the approval of our counsel. We reserve the right to reject any and all subscriptions in whole or in part, to allot less than the amount applied for and to close the subscription books at any time without notice.

It is expected that delivery of temporary bonds or interim receipts will be made on or about February 24, 1926, at the office of Lehman Brothers, 16 William Street, New York, N. Y., against payment therefor in New York funds.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

General Motors Leads in Late Rally—Oil and Rail Shares Are Well Bought.

MONEY MARKET IS EASY

Special to The Washington Post.

New York, Jan. 27.—In accordance with expectations, the stock market emerged from its rut today, and following an early slump, prices turned upward and continued to ascend until bears were distressed. The direction in which the list moved, however, was contrary to calculations of the professional trading fraternity, who had figured that, since no change was made in the United States Steel Corporation's dividend, stocks ought to go down.

Operating on that theory, speculators attacked the market at the outset. Their drive met with temporary success, particularly in the steel group where prices were hammered down to levels well below the aid of scattered liquidation by small traders who had bought Steel common in anticipation of an increase in the extra payment.

However, the afternoon buying orders, which had been held until the steel meetings were out of the way, were placed in the hands of brokers in such volume that the tide of prices was turned decisively upward and thereafter the shorts were in trouble.

General Motors was selected as the leader of the rally. It is expected another extra dividend will be declared at the forthcoming quarterly meeting. In anticipation of that development the stock was bid up aggressively for a net gain of 6 1/2. Sympathetic recoveries were registered by other motors, including Hudson, which gained 4 1/2, and Chrysler, 2 1/2, higher, with the result that eventually a large variety of stocks were taken in hand and advanced.

Cerro de Pasco had an individual movement in the copper group, gaining 1 1/2 net. Oils were bought on the heavy decrease in production and talk of higher prices. The buying movement also was generated in the railroad division under the lead of Wabash. That stock was advanced to a new high level, possibly to discount expected absorption of the road by an Eastern trunk line system. At one time it was 2 1/2 higher, and finished with a gain of 2 points.

A fractional reaction in Pennsylvania railroad stock was due to a variation today of only the regular quarterly dividend. Wall street had expected an increase.

Do Pont came along with the automobile group, and eventually outstripped it, closing 9 points net higher. Fisher Body gained 2 1/2. Mack Truck closed 3 1/2 up. Other outstanding net advances included Woolworth, 7 points; United States Steel Iron Pile, 5 points; Fruit, 5 1/2; American Brake Shoe, 6 1/2; Famous Players-Lasky, 3 1/2; Case Threshing Machine, 5; Union Bag & Paper, 4 1/2; American Can, 3 1/2; National Lead, 4, and South Portland Cement, 3 1/2.

The inability of the bears to make more capital out of the dividend action of the Steel Corporation was due to the fact that the earnings for the December quarter were better than expected and brought the total for the year up to an average of nearly $13 a share on the common stock after all depreciation and other charge-offs and preferred dividends. The turnover in stocks was under 1,500,000 shares.

Call money opened and renewed at 4 per cent, unchanged from yesterday. The money market's undertone was distinctly easy.

Foreign exchange was steady, although sterling eased off a shade. French francs gained nearly 2 points and rates elsewhere were little changed.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Jan. 27. (By the Associated Press).—Wheat underwent something of a reaction today, the recent sharp advance. Profit-taking was the part of holders became lively, and new buying failed to provide a quick outlet. Wheat closed unsettled, 1 1/2 to 1 3/4, and July, 1 1/2 to 1 3/4, and corn 1 1/2 to 1 3/4, and oats 1 1/2 to 1 3/4, and soybeans 1 1/2 to 1 3/4, and rye 1 1/2 to 1 3/4, and barley 1 1/2 to 1 3/4, and clover 1 1/2 to 1 3/4, and alfalfa 1 1/2 to 1 3/4, and timothy 1 1/2 to 1 3/4, and hay 1 1/2 to 1 3/4, and straw 1 1/2 to 1 3/4, and feed 1 1/2 to 1 3/4, and stock 1 1/2 to 1 3/4, and poultry 1 1/2 to 1 3/4, and eggs 1 1/2 to 1 3/4, and butter 1 1/2 to 1 3/4, and cheese 1 1/2 to 1 3/4, and milk 1 1/2 to 1 3/4, and cream 1 1/2 to 1 3/4, and sugar 1 1/2 to 1 3/4, and coffee 1 1/2 to 1 3/4, and tea 1 1/2 to 1 3/4, and spices 1 1/2 to 1 3/4, and fruits 1 1/2 to 1 3/4, and vegetables 1 1/2 to 1 3/4, and flowers 1 1/2 to 1 3/4, and other 1 1/2 to 1 3/4.

Declines that ensued carried wheat down 2 1/2 cents from the top figures, but the demand from previous sellers developed, and the market came back a full cent from the previous low. Meanwhile, receipts of spring wheat were larger, and it was asserted that millers had begun to pay better than May prices for the crop. Chicago mill received some wheat from Minnesota. Nevertheless, premiums on Minnesota wheat were 1 cent higher.

Corn and oats followed the price changes in wheat, leading traders contending that corn at present is in the same position as they would be at 80 a hundred.

Provisions were slightly easier, influenced by the action of hog values and of corn.

MOON CAT

Curland Liked Despite Top Weight

Grapstone Graduates in Third Event, Says Expert.

Crowd at New Orleans Hopes for Killing on Settee.

By BERT E. COLLIER.

MOON CAT. Here's the cat's meow. Had this maiden filly on my private tab for weeks and the word was not to let this one get by, if I had to get out of a sick bed to visit your Uncle Jake. They had planned to shoot on the second day at Miami, but she was obligingly withdrawn to permit the robust Phil Chinn win a heat.

The big doings is scheduled for the first race of the day at the Florida course. COMPLAISANCE appears best of these that have started. MAID OF ORLEANS also looks well and will probably be close up.

CURLAND has the call in the second race, though he is picking up a lot of weight. TOPFANGO, fresh from New Orleans, may be a troublemaker. SHINING LIGHT appears to hold the balance safe. GRAPSTONE should have but little trouble in graduating in the third. SILVERMIRE, trained by W. R. Midgely, who sat over two long shoving form, has his hide in winning form. MOUNTAIN SLIDE, a first time starter, has been working well.

MISSIONARY appears best in the fourth. ORPHUS and PRIME MINISTER, fighting it out for the place money.

SOUTH WIND outclasses her field in the fifth and will probably win as easy as she did a few days ago. RENBARG, running in improved form, will right there. TRAVELER, which has been working all the 3-year-old maidens at Miami, looks like a stand-out in the sixth. SEAGRAVE and DELEGATE are the best of the others.

The New Orleans crowd will kill a flock of geese with SETTEE in the seventh. SPUGGS will show improvement. NETTIE MAY is thoroughly fit for a winning effort. Looks like Bradley Day over at the Fair Grounds.

ROB CARILL, coupled as the late hour farm entry in the third, haven't much to best here. JACK BAUER is the outside contender.

The fifth appears to have been made to order for RACENAP. JACK another Bradley representative and a pretty good colt. DISCIPLE is the one to bat here. Bradley also has BARGAIN DAY in the fourth race, but I believe LITTLE VISITOR will beat him.

FLIGHTY, winner of her only start in this country, may prove better than generally rated.

MIAMI. First race—Moon Cat, Complaisance, Maid of Orleans. Second race—Curland, Topfango, Shining Light. Third race—Grapstone, Silvermire, Mountain Slide. Fourth race—Missionary, Orphus, Prime Minister. Fifth race—South Wind, Renbarg, Hot Pepper. Sixth race—Traveler, Seagrave, Delegate. Seventh race—Settee, Spugs, Nettie May. Eighth race—Disciple, Lom-Lamp.

FAIR GROUNDS. First race—Diane, Lang Star, Bess McCas. Second race—Lupine, Shining Light, Jack Bauer. Third race—Lupine, Shining Light, Jack Bauer. Fourth race—Lupine, Shining Light, Jack Bauer. Fifth race—Lupine, Shining Light, Jack Bauer. Sixth race—Lupine, Shining Light, Jack Bauer. Seventh race—Lupine, Shining Light, Jack Bauer. Eighth race—Lupine, Shining Light, Jack Bauer.

IN THE PRESS BOX

WITH BAXTER

THIS column fears that Clark Griffith, the Big Monument Man from Washington, is rather indisposed. As far as can be gathered he is suffering from the "denials," in both an acute and virulent form. Symptoms of the disease are apparent, and even at this distance it is not difficult to reach definite diagnosis.

It must be acknowledged that there are at times certain imaginative young newspapermen who have the faculty of dreaming a dream and converting it into the cold reality produced by the touch of printer's ink on paper, but some of the stories that have been emanating from Tampa seem to be too detailed for even human ingenuity to have fabricated with nothing to serve as a foundation.

This column suspects that what has, actually taken place is that an acute attack of "worries" on the part of Griffith has developed into the more dangerous "denials," from which he is now suffering. Griffith is by way of having a recalcitrant lot of ball players to deal with this winter. The majority and most important parts of his 1925 machine are still to be assembled for use in the 1926 model.

It has always been noticed that people suffering from the "worries" are inclined to be loquacious. This is evidently what has happened to Griffith. He, undoubtedly, has, in the course of his delirium, told friends and acquaintances just what he would do to curb the financial demands of his employees with no idea that his remarks would reach the press. Tampa, however, is a town still small enough to catch and reach such remarks.

THE RESULT of his attack of the "worries" has, therefore, been a series of decidedly hysterical stories, appearing under a Tampa date line, and the subsequent development of the "denials" on Griffith's part. The crisis will have been reached when Griffith passes from his present stage—in which he is denying reports before they even reach Washington—to the one when his sole intelligible utterance will be "I deny everything."

The worst of all is that there is no telling what the present situation may have done to Griffith's golf game.

It is even reported that the suave member of the firm, Edward B. Eynon, Jr., has missed a 10-inch putt or two lately.

ONE handicap under which Clark Griffith, the Big Monument Man from Washington, is laboring is that he is playing the game of financial chess with his players under a set of rules with which he is by no means familiar. The president of the Washington Baseball club has in all of his years as manager or owner—excepting the last two—used the "poverty opening" and generally checkmated his opponent in ten moves.

The fact that the Nationals have been the participants in two seven-game world's series makes the "poverty opening" ineffective. The players now have a defense that is well-nigh impregnable, and are rapidly closing in on the sizable surplus that stands to the credit of the Washington club in various financial institutions of this city.

The cash-in-hand figure of the local club is probably greater than that of all but two or three other organizations in the major leagues. The two 40 per cent dividends declared this year and last have in reality only amounted to $80,000 in each instance on a capital stock issue of $200,000 par value, and these dividends have literally and figuratively been only peanut money when compared to the actual receipts.

The tale of the peanut, the "hot dog" and the chewing gum at the local park is an interesting one in itself. The Washington club has always been its own concessionaire and profited solely, therefore, through the ability of the cash customer to eat from the first to the ninth inning, inclusive. Last year this by-product alone cleared enough to pay a large part of the $80,000 dividend, leaving the majority of admissions and the world's series spoils clear velvet.

It is this surplus that Griffith is doing his best to defend against the inroads of what he considers exorbitant salary demands. The revised rules may be a little strange, but the president of the club is doing his best to safeguard the bankroll, and thereby permit of the cutting of a special melon which it is rumored will be sliced for the stockholders some time during the course of the present playing season.

If the number of vendors who got in the way of the cash customer just at the most exciting stage of the game is any gauge of the money that was made, no wonder the concessions showed a profit.

John D. O'Reilly probably will have that mile relay team at the Hilltop primed for some record-breaking of its own before the season is over.

THE most disturbing disclosure of all those that Clark Griffith, the Big Monument Man from Washington, has since denied in detail and as a whole, appears to have been the one suggesting that "Muddy" Ruel would be "benched" during the coming season in favor of Tate. The cash customer apparently was not so much exercised over the relegation of Peckinpaugh as startled by the thought that the first-string catcher of recent years might be shelved.

In making this statement, however, Griffith was only going a step further than Stanley Harris, who disclosed last fall that he intended to give Tate an opportunity during the 1926 season to share the duties of first receiver. The manager of the Nationals at that time expressed the conviction that the Illinois youngster was ready to take up his share of steady work after two years spent mainly in the bull pen, and with only occasional forays into actual competition.

The baseball enthusiast apparently does not believe that the time is ripe for such an innovation. The "benching" of Ruel, ascribed to Griffith, brought protests from as far away as Boston. M. T. Keller, of the Massachusetts capital, contended that if such a move was really contemplated it was complete and sufficient evidence of Griffith's senility.

Ruel is, undoubtedly, in the mind of the average enthusiast, one of the best catchers in the game, but those who watched him day after day in 1925 noticed a decided falling off in his work over that of the season before. Ruel was not, in the opinion of this column, a great catcher last year. He was off on his throw, so much so that it was always worth a gamble if the opposing team had a reasonably fast man on second.

It must be said in Ruel's behalf that he went through two years of hard work for which he was ill equipped physically. The strain of catching day after day may have worn him down. If this is the correct diagnosis, a relief catcher may bring Ruel back to the peak of perfection he once enjoyed. If it is not, the sooner the Nationals begin training a man for his place the better.

Griffith can sympathize with the old lady who lived in a shoe, only he has so "many holdouts he doesn't know what to do."

"It is becoming more and more difficult to discover why fighting was prohibited at the Arcade," says Lanky Joe, "and is allowed to continue in Congress."

SOME BONDS
AND RAILS SCORE HIGHS

Market Continues Upward Course; Traction Issues in Good Demand.

FOREIGN LIST IS STEADY

New York, Jan. 27 (By A. P.).—

Undisturbed by the competition from more than $50,000,000 in new offerings, the bond market continued on its upward course without interruption today. Buying orders were well distributed throughout the list, lifting a number of high grade utilities and semispeculative railroad issues to new high levels for the year. The day's turnover approximated $15,000, the largest so far this year.

Traction issues replaced power and light bonds in the leadership of the public utility group. Interborough obligations, having recovered from the recent scare over the company's financial difficulties, were added further by a favorable earnings statement, while New York Railways, Third Avenue, and other local issues displayed impressive strength.

Investors seeking power and light bonds found an outlet for their funds in the $25,000,000 Lehigh Power Securities and $15,000,000 Commonwealth Edison offerings, both of which were quickly oversubscribed. Of the listed issues, Brooklyn Union Term 5 1/2's made the best showing, advancing 1 1/2 points to a new peak at 135.

High grade bonds failed to attract buyers as readily as those issues with convertible or other special features. Southern Railway 6 1/2's, Delaware & Hudson convertible 5's, Chicago & Eastern Illinois 5's, Kansas City Southern 5's, Missouri Pacific refunding 5's, and Chicago, Terre Haute & Southeastern Income 5's scored moderate gains.

Bonds and U. S. Government securities were steady. German 7's reached a new high record at 102 1/2, and Australian 5's were fractionally higher in unusually active trading.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, Jan. 27 (By A. P.).—Further declines in the cotton markets in today's early trading were followed by rallies. May contracts fell 1/4, while July and September contracts were steady. The market closed at 15.57, compared with 15.45 at the close of the previous day. The general market closed steady at 15.45, with a slight advance of 1/4 to 1 1/2 points.

The market opened at unchanged prices to a decline of 4 points. Late cables from Liverpool were steady, but failed to stimulate fresh buying here and the market worked gradually lower. A month's liquidation and some Southern local and Wall Street selling, March declined 1/4, while October advanced 1/4 to 18.04, net declines of 5 to 14 points, while December sold off to 17.75, new low ground for this movement on this position.

Offerings were promoted by reports of an easier spot basis in the South and the falling off in the export movement, but the extensive buying developed and the market steadied. During the afternoon, it seemed the decline, and covering by local or Wall Street traders, which had been may have been connected with the sale in the stock market. March sold up to 20.15 and October to 18.21, and the market closed within a few points of the previous day's closing. The market closed steady at 15.45, with a slight advance of 1/4 to 1 1/2 points.

Business here was improving, but showed improvement over the previous day's trading. The late advance when the spot of covering was said to be coupled with some foreign buying, but the market for trade contracts, making 5,235,848 so far this season, against 5,361,018 last year. Port receipts for today, the United States port stocks, 1,624,151.

CURB MARKET REVIEW.

New York, Jan. 27 (By Associated Press).—Further irregularities developed in today's curb market, but major activity was concentrated in the price of public utilities. Public utilities were featured by a 11-point jump in Lehigh Power, security bonds marked improvement earlier in the week on selling inspired by rumors of financial and credit problems, but the market closed steady at 15.45, with a slight advance of 1/4 to 1 1/2 points.

Coal shares were heavy on reports of a deadlock in the anthracite peace negotiations. A sudden demand for electric refrigeration sent that stock up over 2 points. The market closed steady at 15.45, with a slight advance of 1/4 to 1 1/2 points.

WALL STREET GOSSIP

New York, Jan. 27 (By A. P.).

Loss of $280,000 after all charges reported by Allied Packers, Inc. for the year ended October 31, 1925, in contrast to net profit of $845,927 in the preceding year, or $14.25 a share on the prior preferred stock. Sales were $10,000,000 greater. John A. Hawkins, president of the company, stated at the annual meeting today that the company had made substantial improvement in manufacturing and merchandising and while net earnings were sufficient to meet various interest charges on bonds and other obligations, charges for amortization of bond discount and provision for contingent losses could not be covered. Higher prices resulted from decreased receipts of livestock but market prices in staple products were not on a parallel with the increased cost of livestock.

Stockholders of the Mexican Petroleum Oil Co. have approved an increase in capital from 500,000 shares of $10 par to 1,000,000 shares of $10 par, to acquire additional concessions in South America for which the company is now negotiating. Charles M. Barnett, James Hudson, Frank Chubb, and Roy C. Megeer were elected directors.

A certificate of incorporation of the Standard Oil Co. of California, with a capitalization of $15,000,000, has been filed with the secretary of state of Delaware by the Corporation Trust Co. of America.

December net operating income of the New York Central Railroad declined to $4,195,477 compared with $5,202,736 the same month of 1925, but the total of $67,909,316 for 1925 was $3,274,216 more than the year before. The company's earnings increased $1,734,255 and the year's gross amounting to $385,958,657 gained $16,351,727.

Stockholders of Nash Motors Co. have approved an increase in capital from 200,000 shares of $10 par to 300,000 shares of $10 par, to acquire additional shares of common to be distributed for each of the 273,000 shares. Directors were re-elected.

The street hears that the balance sheet of Universal Pipe and Radiator Co. at the close of 1925 will be one of the company's best, showing cash of about $2,000,000, no bank loans, and a ratio of current assets to current liabilities of more than 10 to 1.

Ward Baking Corporation reports net profit of $4,293,143 for the year ended December 31, 1925, equal after preferred dividends to $10.18 a share on the class A common and $2.18 a share on the non-preferred common. This compares with net profit of $3,274,216 for 1924, or $10.53 on the class A and $5.50 on the non-preferred common.

Matthew C. Brush, recently elected chairman of Barnard Corporation, said acquisition of the company's stock by Barnard will help to meet the need of the mid-continent field for a strong organization able to coordinate production and assist in discouraging competition. The corporation should now be able to show the results of work done in the last four years to round out the properties and improve the capital structure and develop sustained earning power, he asserted.

The preliminary statement of the Missouri-Kansas-Texas for 1925 shows surplus of $6,171,815, after preferred dividends, against $5.41 a share on the common. This compares with $5,508,437 or $4.72 a share on the common the year before.

An increase in common stock of Columbia Gas & Electric from 750,000 to 2,000,000 shares will be authorized by stockholders at the annual meeting, April 15. The preliminary report for 1925 shows a net income of $9,429,755, equal after preferred dividends, to $5.38 a share on the common, against $6,707,273, or $4.41 a share in 1924.

Stockholders of Motor Products Corporation today approved a plan of reorganization by which holders of preferred stock in the present company will receive for each share one share of preferred in the new company, carrying dividends of $5 a share annually and redeemable at $60 a share. Holders of common stock will receive two shares of common in the new company for each share now held.

50 PCT. GAS RATE RISE MAY FOLLOW REVALUATION PLEA

Companies Submit Inventory of Physical Properties to Utilities Board.

$9,000,000 INCREASE IN APPRAISAL SOUGHT

Bus and Traction Hearings to Be Held by Commission Today.

Gas at $1 a cubic foot may become a thing of the past in Washington, superseded by a rate of $1.25 to $1.50 a foot, if the new revaluation asked by the gas corporations is granted by the public utilities commission or the courts, it was learned yesterday.

The Washington Gas Light Co. and its subsidiary, the Georgetown Gas Light Co., sent inventories of their physical properties to the commission several days ago, accompanied by a petition for revaluation. No monetary value of the property was submitted.

It was estimated yesterday by attaches of the commission that the companies' figures on their own property would approximate $25,000,000 and that they would contend for a valuation around that sum. The present valuation set by the commission, on which the present $1 rate is based, is $16,000,000. If the figure said to be the companies' is adopted, it may increase the rate 50 per cent.

May Appeal to Courts.

If the valuation fixed by the commission does not suit the companies, the latter may appeal to the courts, where the commission's estimate of value may be increased, but hardly would be decreased.

Public hearing will be held before the commission today, beginning at 10 a. m. on three subjects. Three hundred citizens of Richmond Park have petitioned to have the Woodley road motorbus line extended, but hardly would be decreased.

Public hearing will be held before the commission today, beginning at 10 a. m. on three subjects. Three hundred citizens of Richmond Park have petitioned to have the Woodley road motorbus line extended, but hardly would be decreased.

Another petition to be discussed by interested persons, is that of the Capital Traction Co. to install a new de luxe 25 cent motorbus line from Thirty-fourth and Ordway streets to Eleventh and E streets northwest.

The third item on the public hearing program is the plea of the Washington Railway & Electric Co. to be relieved of the necessity of installing underground trolley service in North Capitol street between M street and Michigan avenue, as required by an act of Congress.

JURY QUICKLY DECIDES MRS. JEFFRIES IS SUICIDE

Husband Testifies She Made Two Previous Attempts to End Life.

DESPONDENCY DESCRIBED

A coroner's jury at the morgue yesterday gave a suicide verdict after two minutes deliberation in the case of Mrs. Daisy R. Jeffries, 41 years old, found dead from a bullet through her brain in the bedroom of her apartment, 1410 M street northwest, Tuesday morning.

Testimony indicated suicide. John R. Jeffries, the woman's husband, testified she made two previous attempts by cutting her wrist in 1917, and by gas about three and a half years ago.

The finding of the pistol in a closed drawer of a chiffonier before which the body lay is unexplained. "Could you have possibly picked up the pistol and put it back in the drawer in your agitation," asked Coroner J. Ramsey Nevitt. "I can not say I did or I can not say I did not," replied Jeffries. "I was so upset."

Testimony of Stephen A. Armstrong and Mrs. Hester Jones Sargy, neighbors, and Miss Nellie J. Wilson, nurse, was to the effect that Mrs. Jeffries had been depressed.

Dispute Over Burial Of Pastor Is Dropped

Wesley Washington, colored undertaker, gave up his fight for the job of burying a colored Baptist clergyman when he was taken into court yesterday on a technical charge growing out of a dispute between two churches as to which should have the funeral.

At first he pleaded not guilty and demanded a jury trial, but on advice of his attorney he accepted a compromise payment of $25 in lieu of the $50 he had demanded for embalming the remains, and Dr. William C. Fowler, District Health officer, withdrew the charge against him. The body was delivered to the second undertaker and the church of which he was a member will bury him instead of the mission of which he was pastor.

Wall Street's Bishop On Visit to Capital

The Rev. Edwin Augustus Corbett, known as the "Bishop of Wall Street," is here. It was learned last night, for the purpose, he said, of "looking around to see if the boys are behaving themselves."

For twelve years the "bishop" has been holding a regular noon-day service at Nassau and Wall streets, the heart of New York's financial district. His congregation consists of bankers, clerks, runners and just passersby. While he admitted he had a mission in coming here, the Rev. Corbett would not say what it was.

WAN TRIAL CLIMAX COMES AS BANKERS TELL OF VAN'S CHECK

Brother of Alleged Slayer Tried to Cash $5,000
Order, They Testify.

LAMBERT QUESTIONS LI ON HEARING PISTOL SHOT

Judge Bans Police Testimony on Happenings Here
Following Arrest.

The government's case against Ziang Sun Wan, who is on trial for his life in criminal court, reached a climax yesterday when witnesses told of an attempt by Van, the defendant's brother, to cash a $5,000 check at the Riggs National Bank the morning following the triple murder in Kalorama road. Wan is charged with killing one of the three Chinese.

The check which Van presented, according to the testimony, purported to be signed by Dr. T. T. Wong and C. H. Hsie, two of the Chinese who were murdered. Bank officials became suspicious, the testimony showed, and told Van that he would have to bring Dr. Wong to the bank to identify him. Van left the bank saying he would do this, it was narrated, but never returned.

The witnesses who testified in this phase of the trial were Robert Y. Fleming, president of the Riggs National Bank; George O. Vass, vice president; Bennett G. Dent, assistant cashier; Mrs. Mildred E. Hoeke, telephone operator, and Henry F. Halley, a taxicab driver, who took Van to the bank.

Driver Tells of Identification. Halley said that he took two Chinese to the bank. He said that he was certain that Van was one of them, and he thought that Wan, the defendant, was the other.

Wilton J. Lambert, chief counsel for Wan, caused a sensation at the morning session when he asked Dr. Kang Li, the government's star witness, whether he had told police officials that he had heard a shot at the mission house on the night of January 29.

Dr. Li, now a Shanghai physician, had previously testified that he visited the house on the evening of January 31 and discovered the triple murder.

Recalls Alleged Conversation. Attorney Lambert recalled a purported conversation which was participated in by Maj. Raymond Pullman, then superintendent of police; Inspector Clifford L. Grant, the chief of detectives; a man named A. L. Creevy and Dr. Kang Li.

"Did you not say then," Lambert asked, "that you went to the house on the evening of January 29, that you peeped in the window and that you heard a shot? And did you not say that, after hearing the shot, you looked closer and saw a body lying on the floor; and that you got all nervous and excited and went back to your room?"

Dr. Li, who up until then had maintained a passive countenance and manner, became greatly exercised.

Brands Story Lie. "It's a lie!" he shouted. "Produce that witness. I challenge anybody to say I did that. I swear on the Bible."

Attorney Lambert announced that he would call A. L. Creevy, the man who is supposed to have heard Dr. Li say the things accredited to him by Lambert.

The United States Attorney Peyton Gordon and Assistant United States Attorney George D. Horning, Jr., who are prosecuting the case, announced last night that they would call Capt. Guy E. Burlingame to the stand this morning.

It was Capt. Burlingame, then a headquarters detective, and Detective Edward Kelly, who arrested Wan in New York a few days after the triple murder.

Justice Wendell P. Stafford, who is trying the case, has announced that the "deadline" in the testimony of the police officers will be at that point where the prisoner arrived in the city. They may not testify to anything after that.
